CITY TRUCK DEALS GO TO GRAND JURY

Today

Borrowing, Sorrowing.
Happy Iceland.
The Autogiro.
Pope Pius Protests.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

"WHO GOES a-borrowing, goes a-sorrowing" has a high moral sound, but what can you do if you must have the money?

Uncle Sam, rolling in surplus wealth two years ago, goes a-borrowing now to the tune of $800,000,000. And that is only part of what he will need before his borrowing is done.

FORTUNATELY, NATIONAL finances are in the hands of Mr. Mellon, who understands money. The $800,000,000 is borrowed for a long period at 3⅛ per cent, very low interest rate.

Banks will eagerly absorb the loan, thus putting their cash to work, and always able to borrow on the bonds from the Federal Reserve if they need cash suddenly, and for less than the interest on the U. S. bonds just now.

With our deficit already past one billion, Americans might envy the people of Iceland, with no army, no navy, no deficit, everybody at work. Their important city, Reykjavik, has piped water from a hot spring, two miles away, and uses the water to heat public buildings, and the people own the hot water.

IF IT WERE here, some private company would have a meter on that hot water, selling it to the city, and explaining that cities must not engage in business.

However, we have many things that the Icelanders have not, and some day we may add to our possessions the ability to manage our own natural monopolies. It is a long way off, but it will come.

GEN. WILLIAM MITCHELL, head of our air forces in the Big War, has just flown back to Middleburg, Va., where this is written, after an inspection and trial of the autogiro, or "almost straight-up-and-down flying machine."

That machine, with a speed of 120 miles an hour, represents a remarkable improvement in flying, says Gen. Mitchell. He flew one of the machines, and is amazed at its various good qualities, ease in maneuvering, and ability to rise, almost vertically.

GEN. MITCHELL flew from Washington to Pitcairn Field, near Philadelphia, in a small two-seater, taking his old friend and fellow pilot, Maj. Ocker, with him. He had not flown a machine in nearly five years, but found that, like swimming, flying is always remembered.

Keep your eyes, lungs, heart and nerves in good condition, and you can always fly. The combined ages of the two flying friends equal 102 years. Each is 51 years old.

POPE PIUS, stirred by anti-Catholic outbreaks in Rome, denounces vigorously the "sad spectacle to which Rome and Italy have been treated." That the Pope will not remain silent, although physically unable to cope with conditions, is made clear. As he said last night, one can "ask for our life, but not for our silence."

CARDINAL O'CONNELL, of Boston, at a mass in honor of his graduation from college 50 years ago, denounced as "cowards, not Catholics" those responsible for the anti-Catholic attacks in Spain and Italy.

He warned his hearers against dangerous conditions and possibilities in America, because of secret atheistic societies, and could foresee, under certain conditions, the crash of civilization with chaos following.

COMMENTING ON the fact that 90 per cent of those engaged in anti-Catholic violence in Spain and Italy are "themselves Catholics, Cardinal O'Connell said:

"They call themselves Catholics, they were baptized Catholics and very likely on their deathbed they will call for a priest, but in the meantime they are cowards, not Catholics."

If there were in Spain or Italy as many as 100,000 men like Cardinal O'Connell, the situation might change, and they need not be any younger than the cardinal, who graduated 50 years ago.

THE PARIS Journal des Debats, most serious French newspaper, sees in the Italian dispute dangers "deep rooted," and feels that the recent making of the concordat between the Vatican and Mussolini was a serious political mistake, from the Vatican's point of view.

SAYS THE French editor:

"Fascism is a sort of religion, subjecting everything and everyone to the moloch state, and therefore is essentially pagan."

The world does not yet appreciate the great and serious importance of these anti-religious outbreaks.

MEANWHILE, THE Russians, with whom hatred and contempt for religion is almost a religion in itself, continue the work of material upbuilding. Great power plants, some hydraulic, some produced by fuel oil, are planned.

The biggest hydraulic turbine engine ever made was shipped by General Electric to Russia, and that is a mere beginning. Half the farms in Russia, which means 60,000,000 human beings, are to be supplied with electric power. And all, of course, government-owned. There is plenty in Russia to interest those who

Borich Plans to Call Out All Workers in District; Rival Union Chiefs Clash

BULLETIN.

Plans for a concerted move to bring out miners still working were made today when two mass meetings, one at Library and the other at Manifold, were called for tonight, along with a march of protest from Horning, Mollenauer, Coverdale and Castle Shannon mines to Montour No. 10 of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, according to Secretary Frank Borich of the National Miners Union.

With Patrick T. Fagan, president of the local United Mine Workers of America, and Frank Borich, secretary of the National Miners' Union, both claiming to have called the strike, coal miners at 14 mines in the Pittsburgh district today had walked off the job.

Fagan says 4,000 men are on strike. Borich said that 5,500 are out and predicted the strike will spread to all of Western Pennsyl-

SUPERVISOR CALLED IN PROBE

Hillegas, After Parley, Denies Complaining to Kline Against Machines

BULLETIN.

Private detectives will "shadow" witnesses subpenaed in the grand jury investigation of the city supplies bureau, it was learned today, to prevent possible tampering. Many of the operatives, it is said, have been hired by the Citizens' Committee.

Purchases of city trucks will be one of the first matters to come before the grand jury in its investigation of alleged irregularities in the city Supplies Bureau, it was indicated today with the service of a subpena on Charles A. Hillegas, chief supervisor of the Department of Highways and Sewers.

About 25 subpenas have been issued, it was learned, and more are being prepared.

Hillegas, former superintendent of the department, is reported to have been demoted to his present position because of a disagreement with Mayor Charles H. Kline over truck purchases and contract awards.

He was served with a subpena in his home last night and today was called before James McGinley, acting assistant chief of county detectives.

DENIES LETTERS

As he left McGinley's office, Hillegas was asked why he had been summoned. He said:

"I don't know, except that I was told to bring some letters that I was supposed to have written to Mayor Kline telling him not to buy certain trucks because I had learned they were not efficient.

"It seems ridiculous to me, because I never made such comment to anyone and if I were writing any letters they would have been to my immediate superior, Director of Public Works Lang, and not to the Mayor."

Among the others subpenated, or to be served, were James B. Sansom, secretary of the County Planning Commission; Emmaline Pitt, federal labor conciliator; Mrs. C. H. Teasdale, who for years has sold the city its carbon paper; John F. Lang, chief clerk in the Supplies Bureau under Bertram L. Succop, who was discharged as its director by Mayor Kline in the early stages of the investigation; Bert Doty and Betty Eula Dwyer, also clerks in the bureau, and Curtis A. Puffinberg, a furniture salesman.

Puffinberg and Sansom are to be questioned, it is believed, about contracts awarded their furniture firm, known as the Puffinberg Company, for 1,300 chairs for the Mayview Hospital. The

BURGLAR TRAP KILLS SAVANT

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., June 2.—(AP.)—The death of Dr. Ralcy Husted Bell, apparently a victim of his own burglar trap, was under investigation today.

The body of the alienist, naturalist and author was found at Sycamore Lodge, his summer home. There was a gunshot wound in the chest. A shotgun set on a closet floor with a wire to the door apparently had been discharged, killing Dr. Bell almost instantly. Death occurred Friday.

Some years ago Dr. Bell became incensed at what he termed "vandal motorists," who drove over the highways and pulled up flowers and shrubs. He vowed he would put an end to the practice and rigged up traps in hidden places and included his own grounds in the elaborate plan.

Mac, who learned the game here as a boy and who at 38, is back home in quest of his first major title, established two course records. Yesterday he fought through rain and wind to a brilliant 70 at Barry, and today he turned in a 71 over the more difficult Carnoustie layout.

NEW YORK, June 2.—(INS.)—A "murder for a thrill" was solved today with the arrest in West Orange, N. J., of Phillip Knox Knapp, former Cornell student an "black sheep" of a prominent Syracuse (N. Y.) family, who confessed to the police that he killed Louis Panella, a taxicab driver, for the "thrill" he got out of it on June 26, 1925.

SEIZED BY SLEUTHS

After a world-wide search, he was seized by a dozen detectives his home. Knapp at first denied knowledge of the crime but later said:

"I might as well come clean. I don't know why I did it, unless it was for the thrill. Panella's specter pursued me for nearly six years."

He had been living under an assumed name and had married twice.

BIRTH CONTROL STAND REBUKED

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., at its one hundred and forty-third session today in Syria Mosque decided to make no ecclesiastical pronouncement on birth control. It censured the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America for its stand on the subject, but decided to remain a member of the council.

This action was taken today when the report of committee on bills and overtures, made yesterday, was adopted and the minority report tabled.

A motion of the Rev. M. A. Matthews, of Seattle, Wash., that the General Council consider the reorganization of the Federal Council was carried. He said the Presbyterian Church has been injured and made to look ridiculous by the action of the Council on birth control.

UPHELD BY KERR

After the Rev. George N. Luccock, of Berea, Ky., read the report recommending no further action be taken, Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, chairman of the general council, gave seven reasons for the Presbyterian adherence to the Federal Council.

A 50-pound plate, which snapped when the span buckled, was hurled over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks, and dug itself into the ground along the ties.

PINCHOT ASSAILS POWER TRUST AT GOVERNORS' PARLEY

CHARGES 4 BIG UNITS 'MILK PUBLIC'

57 Per Cent of Industry Controlled by Morgan And Mellon, He Asserts

FRENCH LICK, Ind., June 2.—(AP.)—Govs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, and Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, were headliners of the annual governors' conference here today.

The Pennsylvanian chose to deliver a warning against domination by public utilities in political affairs. He said this is a grave danger to government by the people.

ROOSEVELT PLANNING

Gov. Roosevelt, speaking on land utilization and state planning, told the state executives that in time of booming industry, we can overlook the defects of organization and danger signals from industry and agriculture, but in times such as the present these symptoms attain new importance and show us the urgency of the new problems we have to face.

Gov. Pinchot said:

"The strongest political power in my own commonwealth is the power of the organized public utilities, and I venture there is hardly a single state where the pressure of public utility lobbyists upon the Legislature and the government is not known."

He traced the growth of the electric industry, which started less than two generations ago and now has a total investment of approximately $12,000,000,000. He continued:

"Meantime, huge electric utility systems have grown up through the consolidation of smaller companies into larger units, and the merger of control through layers of holding companies.

FOUR MAJOR INTERESTS

"Today, according to the Bureau of Applied Economics, about 90 per cent of the total electric power generated in the United States is under the domination and control of four major interests. And these interests work together harmoniously under a common policy and toward a common end—which is the milking of the public."

He declared that 57.12 per cent of the power industry is controlled by what he referred to as "the Morgan-Mellon group."

Pinchot Backers Reported At Work in Middle West

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(Universal.)—With no political love being lost between President Hoover and Gifford Pinchot, word has reached here today from authentic sources that the Pennsylvania governor has an active machine at work in the Middle West and elsewhere, looking to his nomination for the presidency in 1932.

He also is fighting bitterly in his home state to retain control of the Republican party against the Mellon-Vare interests, which support Hoover. He is striving to put one of his own men into the Republican National Committee vacancy left by the resignation of Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

It is agreed here that if he can do this, Pinchot will have delivered a powerful stroke at the Hoover renomination chances. It is pointed out that both the chief executive and Vice President Curtis chose Pennsylvania for Memorial Day addresses. Observers also noted the fact that Pinchot ignored the visit of both, going to Oyster Bay, N. Y., to deliver a Memorial Day speech at the tomb of President Roosevelt.

believe that everything must be based on private initiative.

GOV. ROOSEVELT of New York, in the Mid-West, appears an intelligent and tactful candidate for the Democratic nomination. He will not make the kind of mistake that led a Republican candidate to ignore Hiram Johnson in his own state.

When Gov. Roosevelt, in Indiana, found that Gov. Ritchie had not been invited to a certain luncheon given in his (Roosevelt's) honor, Gov. Roosevelt declined to go. The 1932 campaign will give those that "guess politics" excellent opportunities to show their skill.

Tassone wants to pay off a $2,500 mortgage with his winnings and to buy clothing for his family, but Mrs. Rubin refused to say what she will do if she wins. She said:

GYROCOMPASS GUIDES 'BLIND' NAUTILUS

'Borrowed' Naval Electrician Explains Navigation of Wilkins' Polar Trip 'Sub'

By HERMAN GIESKE

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 2.—How can the submarine Nautilus grope her way underneath the Arctic ice crust without becoming a helpless derelict?

This question was answered today by Chief Electrician Frank Blumberg, gyro compass expert, "lent" to the expedition by the United States Navy.

Even though the men of the Nautilus never see the Arctic sun, they can find their way unerringly, Blumberg said. He declared the very motion of the earth itself in the high latitudes would point the way. He explained:

"The Nautilus will rely on her gyrocompass, specially fitted to serve as a slow wanderer, a device hitherto untried by mariners. A gyrocompass operates like a spinning top. It is merely a wheel revolving about an axis.

"Whirling in space at a high rate of speed, it has a tendency to maintain itself in a fixed plane. By the laws of ballistics, this gyro wheel is caused to change its direction at a constant rate. The rate of change coincides with the rotation of the earth.

"When the Nautilus reaches the high latitude of 70 to 75, it is probable the instrument will cease to function as a gyro. It then will have lost the earth's directive force. We will then suspend it as a north-seeking compass and change it to a slow wanderer.

"The earth, theoretically, will be revolving around the compass suspended in mid-air. Since we know the rate of the earth's revolution, we can calculate the course of the Nautilus."

MAGEE ATTACKS HALL BONDS IN COURT

Questions Legality of Issue Before Harrisburg Judge; County Denies Claims

HARRISBURG, June 2.—Validity of the bond issue of $6,000,000 approved at a special election in June, 1928, by voters of Allegheny County for a municipal auditorium was attacked today in the Dauphin County Court.

The court is hearing argument on an appeal of John H. Palmer, a taxpayer, from the approval of the Department of Internal Affairs of the bond issue. The appeal is being heard by Judges William H. Hargest and John E. Fox.

MAGEE CLAIMS

William A. Magee, former mayor of Pittsburgh, counsel for Palmer, contended the department could not give partial approval to a bond issue. He also claimed the site of the proposed auditorium should have been acquired before the bond issue was voted on.

He claimed the municipality must certify to the Department of Internal Affairs the complete and accurate purpose of the proposed bond issue and that the department must pass upon the entire program.

COUNTY'S DEFENSE

Magee's contentions were denied by Attorney John G. Frazer, of Pittsburgh, special counsel for Allegheny County.

The county's counsel doubted that Palmer had any standing in court.

Magee objected to incorporating into the record files of the Department of Internal Affairs covering the subject of the bond issue. Frazer contended the law specifies the department shall file the records with the prothonotary of the Dauphin County Court in cases of appeal.

Magee also asked to amend his petition, in which he contended the vote of the special election of 1928 was not counted by the Court of Quarter Sessions. He also said the commissioners had not filed with the Department of Internal Revenue Affairs a copy of the resolution covering the bond issue. The former mayor contended the certificate of debt was not sworn to.

OPPOSED BY FRAZER

Objections to these amendments were made by Frazer, who claimed there was plenty of time before to make these additions.

J. B. Routley, assistant chief clerk to the county commissioners, was called to read from the minute books covering the bond issue. Magee said he wanted to show some of the essential data was omitted from the minutes of the commissioners.

Coolidge Cites Necessity Of Merchandising Profit

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., June 2.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The keynote both at a recent meeting of steel men and at a later convention of the Foreign Trade Council was the criticism of wholesale selling of manufactured commodities below cost. Profitless merchandising was denounced. Resistance to price cutting and maintenance of prices were urged.

Mr. Coolidge

This principle is of the first importance and if it can be adopted would change the whole aspect of the business situation. Uncertain and declining prices are discouraging and demoralizing. As long as that condition exists, nearly everything that is not of the utmost necessity is at a standstill. A state of unfair competition is created, paralyzing to buying power. The maintenance of reasonable and stable prices for fabricated products is the first requisite to recovery.

While this subject interests all kinds of savings, investments and business, it is especially vital to the wage earner. The wholesale cost of most commodities is principally the cost of labor. The wage scale of the country has held rather better than anything else, but if all other costs are reduced the pressure to reduce wages will be well nigh overwhelming. Profitable price standards are not a panacea, but they are an essential element to wage scales and economic recovery.

LOGBOOK REVEALS BALLOONISTS' PERIL 10 MILES IN AIR

2 MEN ESCAPE DEATH ONLY BY SECONDS

Landing Saves Gondola From Being Crushed by Inside Pressure, Diary Discloses

Prof. Auguste Piccard and Dr. Charles Kipfer, first men to conquer the stratosphere, are alive today, but 17 hours after they had taken off from Augsburg, Germany, in the sealed gondola of their balloon, they had given up hope of living and expected to be blown to bits at any moment. Their struggle against death, as told by Dr. Piccard in the logbook in brief, dramatic notes, is revealed here for the first time.

By WILLIAM HILLMAN
Universal Service Special Cable.

BERLIN, June 2. — Prof. Auguste Piccard and Dr. Charles Kipfer, who have been nearer heaven than any other humans, were only seconds from a ghastly death when they floated in the stratosphere 10 miles above the earth in the gondola of their balloon.

This was revealed today in Prof. Piccard's diary of the flight, which he calls "Logbook of Trip 13." In terse, terrifying entries, the Belgian-Swiss physicist noted his sensations; told of the struggle to prevent the gondola from being shattered by the pressure of the life-giving air inside.

NEAR DEATH

Graphically Piccard's handwriting, which becomes almost indecipherable at times, reveals how close he was to an unknown death in a region he was first to penetrate. Toward the end of the log he scribbled:

"Seventeen hours in air . . . oxygen for 20 hours . . . gas valve torn off . . . 41 degrees of heat.

"Air's getting thinner and thinner.

"We are dying of thirst. We lick the walls for moisture.

"We remain very still and quiet, so as not to use up too much oxygen.

"Finally—we must—we rationalize the air. We need to live.

"The sun goes down. The balloon still does not descend.

"The end of the valve rope is pulled.

"Higher . . . higher . . . we have no more hope.

"The manholes are open — free.

"To our despair—the mountains!

"We strike something . . . once . . . twice . . . a third time —Kipfer receives a heavy blow on the head. Only the basket which protects his head and which was laughed at, saves him from serious injury.

EXPECTED TROUBLE

Piccard and Kipfer knew they were going to run into trouble, but they were courageous enough to take their chances in the cause of science. Not long after they started from Augusburg, their oxygen apparatus for compressed air broke, and they worked hard to repair it. Then they discovered the trouble with the gas valve rope, and worried about it. The logbook begins with the take-off.

"3:50 a. m.—Locked in. 4:00—Departure. 4:24—Fifteen kilometers. 4:28—One thousand meters more. 5:00—Oxygen apparatus containing compressed air broke just before start.

"We are working with liquefied oxygen till now. We've just repaired it successfully."

Entries disclosing the gravity of the situation later in the flight were:

"Pressure within slowly going down. Can hear soft whistling sound but can find nothing. If it doesn't get worse, it doesn't matter.

"Pressure without, 76 millimeters. (Man needs pressure of 760 millimeters to live and breathe.)

DISCOVER LEAK

"8:25—We've discovered loss of air. Ballast valve was not closed. Both taps must be closed.

"8:42—Decide to land because of valve rope.

"There's danger the descent will be too fast, therefore we want to pack up heavy things and instruments."

FIGHT FOR LIFE

From that moment on, it was a struggle, and with the oxygen supply giving out slowly, Piccard and Kipfer were almost certain that they could not live. Only Kipfer's super-human effort in pulling the rope and finally releasing the gas through the faulty valve saved the ballonists.

Here there is a six-hour gap in the entries. The two airmen were evidently too busy with their scientific observations to record the progress of their balloon.

LANDING RECORDED

"5:45 p. m.—Outside the pressure is 96 millimeters. We still have enough oxygen for four hours, provided the mercury which has flowed onto the floor does not damage the aluminum.

"8:52—We have dropped to 4,500 meters.

"9:00—We have landed at 2,600 meters altitude on the Ober Gurgl Glacier. We still have 360 milligrams of ballast left."

The officer was not suspended, but was still on duty.

DOCTOR FOUND MURDERED IN COSTLY HOME

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Bludgeoned, strangled, stabbed, Dr. George E. Deely, well-known Brooklyn specialist, was found murdered in his bedroom today. It was a real murder mystery.

There were no windows open. The door was locked, apparently from the inside. No one in the house heard any disturbance.

There were many evidences of a struggle in the luxurious apartment. Curtains were jerked from the windows. Tables, chairs and other furniture were overturned.

Directly across the street from the murder house is located a school for girls.

The doctor's body was found by the wife of the caretaker. In gay-colored pajamas, it lay on a costly oriental rug in the bedroom. A knob-topped post wrenched from the foot of the doctor's bed lay beside the body. It was apparently the weapon which broke the physician's skull.

Dr. Deely, 45, was a bachelor and one of Brooklyn's foremost physicians and surgeons.

GASPARRI AIDS POPE IN MOVE FOR PEACE

Former Papal Secretary of State Reported Working To Settle Controversy

ROME, June 2.—(AP.)—Cardinal Pietro Gasparri, who as papal secretary of state signed the Lateran Treaty in 1929, is believed to have taken a hand in the new crisis in relations between the Vatican and the Italian government which has resulted in dissolution by Premier Mussolini of all the Catholic youth clubs in Italy.

It is understood that the aged cardinal statesman is laying the ground work for official negotiations to prevent what appears to be a new parting of the ways between the church and the state. He is one of those, it is said, who regard this situation as one of the gravest in recent times, threatening both the Lateran treaty and the concordat between Rome and the Holy See.

PLAYGROUNDS ISSUE

American interests are still involved, for permission extended unofficially yesterday for reopening of playgrounds operated by the American Knights of Columbus has not been approved by the premier. Papal Count Edward Hearn, in charge of the playgrounds, already has filed a protest at the American embassy and now he will urge the ambassador to file his own with the Italian government.

POPE WAITS REPLY

At noon today the Pontiff had received no word from the Italian government in reply to his note of protest regarding the dissolution of the Catholic societies. Officially he is still in the dark and actually, it is said, he is ignorant of Mussolini's real intentions.

This is the forty-ninth anniversary of the death of Garibaldi, whose troops fought the Papal army and were instrumental in making the Pope a "prisoner" in the Vatican for 59 years.

Millionaire's Son Drops Suit Against Relatives Of Former Mildred McCloy

ST. LOUIS, June 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mildred Carver Milliken, daughter of Mrs. Harriet Flannery McCloy, of Pittsburgh, yesterday obtained a divorce from John T. Milliken, Jr., son of late chemical manufacturer, and restoration of her maiden name. She had charged general indignities. Milliken did not appear to contest suit.

By agreement of counsel, Milliken's cross bill will be expunged from record and his $350,000 alienation of affections suit against his wife's relatives will be dismissed. Milliken will pay $10,000 alimony and $4,000 for his wife's litigation costs.

Mr. and Mrs. Milliken were married in Miami, Fla., in the spring of 1928. After their marriage, they lived in St. Louis and Palm Beach, until July, 1930, when they were separated. She then sued for absolute divorce on the ground of general indignities.

A spokesman for the Flannery family said that afetr many months of fruitless endeavor to persuade Mrs. Milliken to return to him, Milliken sued several of her relatives and friends for alienatin of affections, and made unwarranted charges against her.

When Mrs. Milliken persisted in going ahead with her divorce suit, he retracted all charges on the eve of the trial, declined to contest her application for absolute divorce and withdrew all suits for alienation of affections against Mrs. Milliken's relatives and friends, in addition to making a cash settlement, the spokesman declared.

BLAST IN PLANT PERILS 50

When an explosion of powdered aluminum early today ripped off a portion of the roof of the finishing room in the Logan's Ferry plant of the Aluminum Company of America, night force workers from other departments hurriedly banked metal doors with sand to prevent the spread of the flames.

The explosion was heard for five miles, it was reported in valley towns. Fifty men were endangered.

A workman had just finished adjusting machinery in the room when the blast occurred. The room is a long narrow brick structure, with a fiber roof, in which a powder used in the manufacture of paint is graded. The powder is said to be inflammable.

Residents of New Kensington and Tarentum reported hearing the blast. Officers of the company said the damage amounted to $1,000 and that no person had been injured.

Judith Dean, toe dancing member of her troupe, and Ralph Cook, comedian, tried to obtain permission of the American consul to be married with a license obtained in New York, but he refused.

As the last hope vanished that they would be allowed to go to Paris, the entertainers' spirits sunk to a new low. Huddled in the bare dining room of their emigrant hotel, they listened mournfully to the plunk of a guitar and a dancer rehearsing her steps. They are to be deported tomorrow on the liner Paris—and will have to pay their own fare home.

PRESBYTERIANS CRITICIZE COUNCIL

sible in the establishment of the council, and has maintained its relationship for 30 years. He said the church has been foremost in advocating co-operation in union at home and abroad, and that the council rendered important wartime service. He argued a central agency like the Federal Council is indespensible.

He said:

"If this body passes, then some irresponsible body will rise to speak for the church without control or responsibility. We are unwilling to provide the comforts and satisfaction which our withdrawal from the Federal Council would give to those forces which are hostile to the Protestant churches in the Evangelical faith."

COUNCIL REBUKE

The Rev. Corwin, Pana, Ill., said it is like chastising an unruly child.

He said:

"If we don't take drastic action against the council, we will go on waiting with fear and trembling on some future pronouncement by the Federal Council. Neither questioning its opinion nor impugning its motives, we can't consistently remain as an organic part of an organization for which we are ashamed, in which we have to administer a spanking."

He insisted the church could never successfully counteract or controvert its pronouncement. A motion to continue the debate to the afternoon session lost and the majority report was approved.

The report read as follows:

COUNCIL UPHELD

"The General Assembly deems it important to remind the church that the Federal Council can not and does not assume to represent its constituent denominations in this or any deliverance of opinion not specifically authorized by the denominations. The Federal Council has itself recently expressed this view in the following action taken by its adminstrative committee on May 20, 1931: 'The publication of such reports (as that on birth control) is authorized by the administrative committee, not as expressing its own conclusions, or the view of the constituent denominations, but rather as the results of the independent investigations made by the specialized committees. Such reports are not to be construed as declarations of the policy or attitude of the council or its administrative committee, or of the denominations, but as a means of information for helping church members to arrive at their own conclusions.'"

WITHDRAWAL URGED

For the last paragraph advising no further action, the minority committee substituted the following:

"The General Assembly hereby and herein declares its intention to withdraw from membership in, and financial support of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, and that such complete withdrawal be made at the earliest practical date."

MARRIAGE REFORMS

Other developments yesterday were:

1—Adoption of the report upon marriage, divorce and remarriage, proposing reforms in marriage laws, uniform divorce laws and an exhaustive educational campaign upon the ideals of marriage.

2—The re-election of Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, of Philadelphia, moderator of the General Assembly, as stated clerk. He was unopposed.

3—The Presbyterian Church threw its whole moral support behind conscientious objectors to war, and reaffirmed its stand opposing compulsory military education. Favored United States entry into the League Court and indorsed prohibition educational campaigns in public schools.

In the main the marriage code was changed but little. It agreed that "it is doubtful if anything is wrong with marriage today that has not always been wrong." The report added:

RAPS HOLLYWOOD, RENO

"We are witnessing a recrudescence of paganism, with Hollywood blazing the way and Nevada prostituting its statehead and pandering to the weaknesses of human nature for 30 pieces of silver."

Declaring that the question of marriage and divorce is one of education, the report went on:

"The fundamental trouble is that the attention of young people is generally directed through our newspapers, magazines, movies, plays and fiction to marriage at its worst rather than at its best."

Dr. Stevenson in his report upon the position of the Federal Council of Churches, said:

"The Federal Council has never given a united opinion on the subject of birth control. Nor has such a report ever been adopted with ecclesiastical authorization. Its own committee was not agreed upon the subject."

He urged against "giving profit to enemies of Protestantism by taking any action in the matter," referring to the overtures scheduled for debate today. Another expression of the assembly's faith in the Federal Council was in the unanimous indorsement of a contribution of $1,500 to further studies upon the marriage question.

Presbyterians Balk Attempt to Alter Lord's Prayer

Presbyterians will continue to repeat the Lord's Prayer.

"Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors."

An effort by commissioners to the General Assembly to change the word "debts" to "trespasses" failed.

The discussion came during the report of the committee upon the revision of the Book of Doctrine. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, chairman of the committee, described it as "the last great work of my life." He is 79.

CHURCH TO HALT REPORT 'LEAKS'

Seeking to prevent "misleading interpretations" upon the release of advance reports of the preliminary findings of its boards, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. yesterday asked the General Council to prevent premature publication of such reports.

The request was contained in an overture which was approved and was believed directed at the advance reports of the activities of the special commission studying marriage, divorce and remarriage in which birth control was indorsed.

The overture said:

"The General Assembly directs the General Council to devise means whereby the injudicious or premature publication of matters pertaining to serious differences of opinion or matters subject to sensational or misleading interpretations may be prevented."

PRESBYTERIANS ACT ON JOBLESS

The report of the Board of National Missions, made this morning to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, asked the general authority to direct the national missions committee on social and industrial relations, in co-operation with the local churches and presbyteries, "to seek to project and promote a practical and constructive program which will meet the immediate needs of the unemployed, namely, work and relief." The report added:

"We believe the Gospel of Christ calls upon the people of our country to order their lives so that those who are willing to work shall have opportunity, that those who cannot protect themselves shall be protected from distress occasioned by industrial conditions without their control and that the wages of workers shall be adequate to support them in health and hope."

The miners came out on strike under the leadership of the National Miners' Union and refuse to have anything to do with the Fagan machine, which betrayed them time and again in their struggles."

ATTACKS PAY SCALE

Fagan said:

"The National Miners' Union is the same radical organization that fostered Pat Toohey and Pat Devine. Their national headquarters is in Russia. They are trying to make America a suburb of Moscow.

"We called this strike because the operators are paying only 30 cents a ton for loading coal and with company checkweighmen the men actually get 15 cents a ton. The men are demanding 44 cents a ton; their own representatives as checkweighmen and a United Mine Workers contract."

U. P. ASSEMBLY TO MEET NEXT AT BEAVER

Change in Central Board, Plea for Church Unity Mark End of Session

By THE REV. JOHN E. SIMPSON
Pastor, North U. P. Church.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 2.—The seventy-third General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church adjourned at noon today, a day ahead of schedule. It decided ot meet at Beaver, Pa., the last Wednesday in May, 1932.

A fiery session yesterday resulted in the complete change of the personnel of the board of administration.

BOARD CHANGED

There has been a persistent demand for making it representative of the church, rather than of the four budget boards.

Yesterday's action provides for the election of two members from each of the three largest synods and one each for the others, making a membership of 15.

In an earnest appeal for church union, Dr. H. C. Swearengin said the "only way to church union is by a coming together of the denominational families." He expressed a sincere hope for the early union of the Presbyterian and Reformed group. He is the fraternal delegate from the Presbyterian General Assembly meeting in Pittsburgh.

HOOVER PRAISED

The assembly sent a telegram to President Hoover praising his attitude on the Eighteenth Amendment and law enforcement. The action followed adoption of resolutions in which the "wet press" was criticized and support of liquor law enforcement was pledged. The convention also asked a federal censorship of motion pictures.

chairs were furnished on two contracts. The Puffinberg-Sansom firm was not the low bidder in either case.

Ben, Dick and Joe Marcus, who conduct a butter and egg business as the Marcus Produce Company, were served with subpenas today, as was Sam Adler, a former deputy sheriff now employed by the Marcus firm.

SEVEN PROSECUTIONS

District Attorney Andrew T. Park and six members of his staff who are to assist in the prosecution, met in his office today. They are George P. F. Langfitt, Roy T. Hunter. Only preliminary phrases of the case were discussed.

Reed will be sworn in as a special assistant district attorney when investigation starts a week from Monday, Park said. He was counsel for Main & Co. in the audit it recently made of the Supplies Bureau's affairs for the Citizens' Committee.

Park and Clunk will leave tomorrow for a fishing lodge in Canada.

The district attorney said:

"There won't be any fishing, though. Clunk and I are taking along the report of the Main & Co. audit and expect to peruse it thoroughly—something it is impossible to do here on account of the interruptions."

Park said he would be gone until Monday.

Samuel A. Taylor, chairman of the engineers committee appointed to study the workings of the Public Works Department, said today that his group has obtained all the data it has been seeking and will have a report ready for City Council Friday or Saturday.

METZ, France, June 2.—(AP.)—Four French army fliers were killed when a bombing plane crashed to earth last night.

Highlights of Presbyterian General Assembly

Upon the recommendation of the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, former moderator of the General Assembly, the committee on bills and overtures will continue studies of recommendations of the General Council for commissioner representation in the General Assembly on the basis of ministerial plus membership basis. This would reduce the number of delegates from 960 to approximately 540.

H. L. Bowbly, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, relating a visit with President Hoover, said the President had told him that the Attorney General had had twice as many convictions of liquor law violators as any previous administration. He added that the President had said the work would be maintained if the jails are crowded with criminals.

The Rev. Dr. Albert J. McCartney, of Washington, pastor of the Covenant First Church, whose church is included in negotiations looking toward the establishment of a National Presbyterian Church in Washington, said a total of $711,600 had been subscribed. The completion of the negotiations are contingent upon the Presbyterians raising $1,000,000 to match a similar amount of money raised by the Covenant First Church.

Two exhibits in "The Presbyterian World in Pittsburgh," national and foreign mission display in Syria Mosque, which are attracting extraordinary interest is the bell from the S. S. Pioneer, used by the famous missionary explorer, David Livingstone, in his exploration of the Zambezi River, East Coast of Africa, and a gun which came from the same ship.

Formation of the United Evangelical Church of Chile is planned in Chile, according to the Rev. S. G. Henderson, a missionary in that country since 1917, in attendance at the Presbyterian General Assembly. When the church is organized according to Mr. Henderson, present Presbyterian churches will cut off official relations with the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., and will only maintain a fraternal relationship.

Foreign Missions have their innings this evening. With a popular meeting scheduled in Syria Mosque the whole problem of mission work will be discussed by four speakers whose experience in the field permits them to speak authoratively. The speakers include Miss Ottora M. Horne, of Syria; the Rev. S. N. Talib-uddin, professor, Theological Seminary, Saharanpur, India; the Rev. Dr. Cheng Ching-yi, moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Christ in India, and the Rev. Charles L. Phillips, of Chosen. The Rev. Dr. Charles R. Erman, president of the Board of Foreign Missions, will preside.

"What shall we have for dinner today?" is the ever-present question of the average housewife.

"Make Donahoe's U. S. government inspected meat the main dish and you won't have to worry," is the answer which solves the problem.

Donahoe's Meat, as many housewives know, makes better and easier meals—meals which every member of the family will enjoy.

Since taste and the enjoyment of food are indispensable to efficient digestion, it is sound policy to serve and eat foods which taste good; hence the housewife cannot go wrong in serving some form of meat at every meal.

Meat is essential in a well-balanced diet. Donahoe's U. S. government inspected meat abounds in proteins and certain minerals which the body needs for strong and healthy growth.

A DONAHOE Steak

—cut from a plump, corn-fed, healthy young steer—actually dressed under the eyes of a U. S. Government Inspector—is one of the most tempting foods known to man. A Donahoe steak tempts the palate, incites the flow of gastric juices and thus aids digestion in Nature's own way.

Clara Bow Turns on Deceitful Aide

Actress Has Breakdown After Reading Tales In Paper

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service.
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc. Reproduction in part or in whole prohibited)

CHAPTER XIII.

Clara had no more than broken her engagement to Harry Richman when she met Rex Bell. Meeting Rex Bell was one of the luckiest moments of her life, for he is a fine boy, unselfishly devoted to her, and entirely unlike any of the other men with whom she has been associated.

Her father, Robert Bow, says he likes Rex Bell the best of any admirer Clara has ever had, although he admits a soft spot in his heart for Harry Richman.

Harry Richman has a way of winning people. He used to take Clara's father to the prize fights, to dinner and make himself so agreeable that when the engagement was broken Mr. Bow said he was sorry that Clara and Harry had decided not to marry.

Just a few days ago I visited Clara in her retreat some miles out of Los Angeles, 2,600 feet above sea level. I traveled over a winding mountain road, where we met no other cars. In a lonely spot away from all the friends that she has known, Clara is trying hard to get well. She had just that day received a telegram from Harry Richman.

Harry's Message

"You know Harry used to joke with me and tell me that whenever I was ready to marry him, his home was always open," Clara said, "and in his telegram he said, 'My offer still holds good. My home is open to you.'

"Will you accept it?" I asked Clara.

"I am afraid that's impossible," she replied, "although I'm still very fond of Harry. A girl can't always say which man she loves the most. In my memories, Harry Richman and Gilbert Roland stand out as being the two whose love meant the most to me. Yet, I was very fond of Dr. Pearson. At the time I went to Texas and the papers carried the story that he had sent for me, I met his father. He told us how impossible it would be for Dr. Pearson and me to ever marry.

"'His practice is here in Dallas, Tex., while your interests are in Hollywood,' he said. 'Not only that, but you are separated in ideas, and have been brought up differently.'

"After giving it considerable thought, I realized Dr. Pearson's father was right, that perhaps it would be a mistake for us to marry," Clara said, "and so we parted. There is much that I could say, but I'm trying to forget this episode in my life. I think, however, much that has been printed is unfair to Dr. Pearson."

Scores Daisy

The only persons I have ever heard Clara out and out condemn is Daisy De Voe. About the men with whom she has been in love, the acquaintances who have criticized her and the hardships that have come to her, she says little. But for the girl she took into her home and treated like a sister she has a bitterness in her soul that nothing will cure. It is difficult to get Clara to say anything unkind about anybody, but just a few days before I visited her Daisy De Voe had made an effort to see her.

She said to the hospital attendants:

"I know that Clara will want to see me. I have just heard that she is sick. Just tell her Daisy is here and she will tell you to see that I am admitted."

If is De Voe had only known it, her plea for entrance to Clara's sick room came at a bad time. Clara had just learned that her trusted ex-secretary, during the time she was on Miss Bow's payroll, had been acting as a tale carrier for Harry Richman. If Clara so much as talked too long on the set at Paramount to another man, Daisy lost no time in getting to the telephone to tell Mr. Richman everything that had taken place during the time he was away from Clara.

Clara Deceived

"I was shocked," Clara said, "to know Daisy was so false. I don't see how she could have looked me in the face knowing all the time that she was making up the cruelest sort of stories to the man that I expected to marry."

Had Clara been a little wiser and less prone to believe everyone, she might have realized that Daisy had much to lose if her employer married Harry Richman, or any other man for that matter. Through the mind of this selfish, self-centered girl must constantly have run the thought, "I'll surely lose my job once Clara marries." Consequently, she did everything in her power to prevent the marriage, just as she did when Rex Bell stepped into the picture.

The day I visited Clara was one of her good days. She was sitting up waiting for Rex Bell, who makes the two-hour trip twice every day to see her.

Clara has left the Glendale Sanitarium and is hidden in a nook where no one can find her. She has even changed the color of her hair.

"Do you like it?" she asked me.

I told her I liked her own red hair better.

"It served as a disguise," she said, "when we motored from Glendale to this place. We stopped along the way to get some papers and magazines and no one recognized me."

The instinct to hide has become almost a part of Clara since she had been hounded and tormented almost into her present nervous state.

"If I could only sleep," she said. "I lie awake night after night wondering what's going to happen and what can happen next. Every time I hear a noise even, I am afraid. I won't take anything to make me sleep because I know that would be bad for me.

"Just think," Clara went on, "that cruel Coast Reporter said that I took dope. Did you read it?" Clara's dark eyes filled with tears. "Do you think anybody believed it?"

I assured her that no one with any judgment would believe the filth printed in that publication.

"Did you read," she asked me, "in the paper that Daisy said it was all lies and she didn't tell Girnau? Do you think she did sign an affidavit accusing me of being absolutely vile?"

Daisy De Voe brought suit against Girnau, denying she had furnished him with the information on which he based the scandalous attacks on Clara, and which caused his arrest.

The vicious articles in the Coast Reporter have almost killed Clara Bow.

Hints Suicide

"I think suicide is terrible," she told me, "but there have been times when I have thought death would be the best way out. Oh, those terrible things they've said about me! It is true I like attention and I've been engaged several times and I have had other men who were in love with me. But anything I've ever done has been right out in the open. I know lots of girls who have entertained men in their homes and who have gone to cafes to dance. I've known lots of girls who have had just as many romances as I have, but they haven't had their names brandished on the front pages of all the newspapers."

Clara's sin is, as we've said before, in not being able to act a part. She is young, she likes life, she wants a good time and what is wrong if she chooses to give her affection in many places? She is certainly not hurting anyone. It would be worse if she were to lie and cheat and repeat idle Hollywood gossip.

A cameraman, on his knees, begs Clara Bow to not reveal his romance with Daisy De Voe. Louella Parsons in tomorrow's installment reveals the depth of mercy which the "It" girl has shown toward those who have injured her.

COLLEGE HEAD LAUDS YOUTHS

William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette College, declared last night at the National Missions meeting in Syria Mosque that America not only leads the world in wealth and education, but in crime as well. Dr. Lewis said:

Dr. Boddy

"The youth of the nation are doing surprisingly well in the face of constantly increasing temptations created by adults for personal gain or the satisfaction of low tastes."

He pointed out that "the racketeer and vice overlord seem to have things their own way in scores of American communities while the so-called good citizens allow their children to grow up under unwholesome conditions."

Dr. William Henry Boddy, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Chicago, made the response to Dr. Lewis' address.

BABCOCK LAUDS AIRPORT PLAN

The City-County Airport now under construction on the Lebanon Church road, Mifflin Township, will be much better than the new municipal airport in Detroit, which has just been completed at a cost of $2,500,000, according to County Commissioner E. V. Babcock, who has returned from an inspection trip of the Detroit field.

Babcock says that the local field will be twice as large and will have better administration buildings and as good or better gas and oil tanks, repair shops and lighting and drainage features.

He also believes that the task of taking over the Wabash Tunnel and converting it to vehicular use will be simple after comparing it with the new international tunnel under the Detroit River. He declared that while the Detroit tunnel was curved, the Wabash tube was straight. This, he believes, will simplify matters when the problem of ventilation is faced.

Round . . lb. 39c

Can be served many ways

We think Round Steak is best served as a "Swiss" Steak. Have the steak cut thicker than usual; pound flour into it. When it has browned on both sides add a little water and simmer until done. You can make oodles of rich, brown gravy.

Sirloin . . lb. 39c

Smother it with onions

You can do almost anything with a sirloin steak, but as a suggestion, smother it with onions. If this idea isn't popular with the family garnish the steak with mushrooms. No matter how you serve a McCann steak you're sure to have a good dinner.

Tenderloin lb. 49c

Best for broiling

When you're in a hurry or want an extra fine steak, buy a tenderloin. It broils or fries to juicy tenderness in a very few minutes. Almost anyone would be satisfied with a generous serving of steak like this and a crisp salad for a summer dinner.

STRIKERS WAIT PEACE OFFER

Leaders of the Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers' Union today awaited some move on the part of the Building Trades Employers' Association in the strike called yesterday which stopped all work on the Gulf Refining and Bell Telephone Company buildings, the Arsenal Trade School and smaller jobs.

J. P. Kelly, chairman of the union, said the deadlock which ended negotiations with the employers, grew out of the latter's demand that the union men surrender their right of unloading and handling materials used in construction work.

The demand of an increase in wages was agreed on by the employers, it was said, but in relieving the union of the handling of materials, it would mean that more than 37 per cent of these workers would be eliminated if laborers were placed in charge of this work.

French China Dinner Set

Two Floral Patterns $39.50 Service for Twelve

Lucky the bride of June, 1931!—for she can start housekeeping with a complete set of exquisite French China, containing every needed piece for serving twelve at luncheon or dinner—without spending any more than the usual cost of porcelain wear.

A committee from our buying group purchased these sets directly from the maker, and a great saving in price was effected.

Two patterns are available—both border designs with flower motifs, one against a deep blue band, the other on pale green. The body of the china is snowy white.

The hundred and six pieces include the popular cream soup cups, two sizes of platters, covered and uncovered vegetable dishes. All the handles are of coin gold and in the interesting new flat shape.

Candlewick Bedspreads

Almost the Universal Summer Choice!

So many Pittsburgh women saw the advantages of having these crisp-looking, hand-tufted bedspreads in their homes for summer, that they depleted our earlier stock . . . and this is a new purchase! Two patterns—a conventional and a basket design—may be selected in blue, rose, green, gold or orchid, worked on cream-colored sheeting.

These spreads are so easy to launder . . . and they do not require ironing—a boon to housewives in summer. Choose them in twin or full-bed size. Have one for every bed in your home, the cost is low enough to permit it.

GIRL ACCUSED IN ESCAPE PLOT

CLEVELAND, June 2.—(AP.)—A sweetheart of Andrew Polzi, alias Curti, 28, under a five-year sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary for counterfeiting, was believed by Sheriff John Sulzmann today to have been involved in a plot of five men to escape from the new county jail.

The jailbreak was thwarted when deputies found saws that had been used in cutting bars on the sixth floor and a rope made of bed sheets. Sulzmann said he believed Polzi was the leader in the plot and that he, Louis Pusterhaffer, 29, and possibly their three cellmates were implicated. The saws probably were smuggled in by a girl visitor, the sheriff said.

Polzi, who was arrested at Akron, declined to reveal details of the attempted escape. He and Robert Ringer, Dominic Cocco and Argent Cassiano, also counterfeiters arrested in Akron, were

Why Drug the Stomach

When Your Blood Cells Control High Blood Pressure and Most All Chronic Diseases?

The blood stream is merely the medium through which these energies float and carry on their duties. If the stream is thick and slovenly, if engorged, swollen, contracted or tortuous, is not the function hampered or arrested as the case may be? A clot in the brain—apoplexy. If a stoppage in the lungs or limps—dropsy. If in the brain—paralysis. If in the heart—sudden death. If in the eye—blindness. If too much blood—vertigo, insomnia. Repeated colds, low vitality, due to faulty blood. The germs themselves are harmless, but the toxins formed by them produce the poisoning. If an infection takes places, what suffers? The blood. In fever, where is temperature the highest? In the blood. In malaria, where is the germ? In the blood. In diphtheria, smallpox, rheumatism, gout—nearly all infections find their seat in the blood stream. Don't you believe it is time to give some special thought to these basic facts and eliminate this stomach drugging, which you know is wrong, neglecting the one only sure and effective avenue of medication—the blood stream? Lack of protein hinders cells' work. When the body cells undergo degenerative changes in Bright's Disease, arteriosclerosis and in all chronic diseases, we find distinct and demonstrable evidence of impairment in nutrition.

Thousands of patients (men and women) were successfully treated for Rheumatism, Anemia, Debility, Diabetes, Asthma, Kidney Troubles, Heart Trouble, Stomach Trouble, Swollen Glands, High Blood Pressure, Blood and Skin Diseases.

WELFARE FUND ASKS COST CUT

Although a decrease has been made in the number of families reported in need of relief to the Welfare Fund during the last two months, an appeal has been made by the organization to its 39 social agencies to curtail expenses as far as possible, according to a statement issued yesterday. The total number of families receiving relief continues at a high point.

Oversubscriptions totaling $53,000 and the contingent fund of $86,000 have been exhausted, officials of the fund declared. The appeal was made, officials said, in order to keep down the deficit which possibly will have to be presented in the budget at the time of the fall campaign.

DELAY BUYING OF FIRE TRUCK

Pending a ruling by the township solicitor on the legality of purchasing the new fire truck they want, rather than one offered at a lower bid, Mt. Lebanon Township commissioners last night tabled a motion to buy the new apparatus.

The commissioners, with one accord, agreed on the purchase of a $15,000 truck, when attention was called to the recent Supreme Court decision on the meters purchased by the City of Pittsburgh without regard of the lowest bid. The commissioners decided to defer voting purchase until the solicitor rules on its legality.

L. C. Clark and Samuel Menelly were named chairman and vice chairman respectively of the board at the meeting.

Police Tow In 37 Autos of Men At Work

Thirty-seven workmen employed on the night shift at the George Westinghouse Bridge, East Pittsburgh, will have to take time off from their jobs tonight to appear before Burgess W. J. Beach, of East Pittsburgh, and answer charges of improperly parking their automobiles in Braddock avenue.

Lieut. David Bennett and a squad of officers last night towed away 37 machiens found parked in the highway. Police say the owners had been warned several times to stop leaving their machines in the street. A large number of the cars bore Ohio license plates, police say.

BYRD TO OPEN AIR LINE HERE

Admiral Richard E. Byrd will spend the week-end here with friends, it was said today by Pennsylvania Air Lines officials, who announced that he will take part in the inauguration of the new Pittsburgh-Washington mail and passenger service.

Admiral Byrd, who will probably be accompanied by Mrs. Byrd, will arrive Saturday from Boston. Ceremonies will be held at Bettis Field Monday at 12:20 o'clock, following arrival of the first plane from Washington.

Congressmen Clyde Kelly and Guy E. Campbell, postal officials and rail and air executives will also take part.

FALL PINS HOPE ON CLEMENCY

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—Failing to obtain relief through the Supreme Court, Albert B. Fall today had remaining two narrow avenues of escape from a year in prison and a $100,000 fine.

The Interior Secretary in Harding's cabinet was refused a review by the highest tribunal yesterday of his conviction of accepting a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny in leasing government oil lands.

If Fall receives a presidential pardon, he will be relieved of the entire penalty, but if that fails there remains the hope that the prison sentence will be suspended because of his age and ill health.

At the White House it was said no appeal on behalf of Fall had been received and if one were made it would follow the usual course.

HEARST TO SPEAK ON ECONOMIC SITUATION

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

William Randolph Hearst will speak on "Cause and Remedy for the Depression" over the Columbia broadcasting system at 11 o'clock tonight. WJAS will carry the speech in Pittsburgh.

In brief: Ben Bernie hits the WJAS trail at 10 o'clock, replacing Richy Craig . . . Alfred Wallenstein, famous cellist of the New York Philharmonic, introduces an all-string ensemble on WCAE at 8:30 . . . the program substituted for "Famous Trials in History" because the trials cost too much.

Baseball scores, Amos 'n' Andy and jazz music rate high with prisoners at the Allegheny County Workhouse, where Harry N. Steinman, 5640 Hobart street, has installed a radio amplifier system in the three cell blocks. Thirteen hundred prisoners work harder when radio music is played, officials have discovered.

The sweet voice you hear when calling WWSW is that of Elsie Wyland, secretary to J. C. Drummond . . . don't mention bridge unless you're a shark.

Columbia's television station operates on a regular daytime schedule starting June 15 and WGBS-W2XCR at New York "audioviews" Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight boxer, and Ray Steele, heavyweight wrestler, this Saturday.

Talking about gifts, Glenn Riggs was presented with a Belgian bunny, Elsie Lichtenstuhl was presented with a scarf . . . and Allen Thrasher drew a suit.

Optowaves, radio waves so short that they approximate the characteristics of light, are being developed by scientists for a radio receiving set the size of a small camera that may be carried in the coat pocket. The antenna will fit in a man's hat. The waves can be measured only in centimeters or inches. The actual wavelength is 65 centimeters or 25.70 meters.

A letter from William S. Paley, czar of CBS, in which he promises to lend an ear to Francis Owen's "Wastebasket" as possible network material.

Fred Swearingen, the singing cop from Fourth and Market, and his accompanist, Mal Marshall, are leading the WWSW request list.

Mike Sassano's little daughter, Shirley, 4, accompanies her daddy when he broadcasts from KQV at 6 o'clock periods . . . Mike does the playing, however; Shirley is only a visitor.

Peter Zummo has a fine collection of traffic tickets for sale cheap.

Which reminds us that Joe Villella has gone in for that sort of connoisseuring, too, collecting a ticket and some mean looks when his freight went through a West Homestead red light . . .

Tony Wakeman, formerly WCAE, is camping on the outskirts of CBS at the request of Burt McMurtrie, chief production man . . . You may hear his voice on the chain before winter sets in . . .

Count Felix von Luckner, German submarine commander during the World War, is to be interviewed by Grantland Rice on WCAE, June 17 . . .

Coon and Sanders, in town today for a dance, travel as close together as twins . . . and have four suits alike!

ADDITIONAL RADIO PROGRAMS

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, June 2.—Some of the hardy tradition against the invasion of broadcasting apparatus in the halls of Congress must have been dispelled during the past garrulous year.

To those ears attuned to Washington it has been the gabbiest year in the history of radio. But the gab has lacked the fire and sting of the floors of debate. It has been prepared for the most part when bodily temperatures were low and cooling, and the blue pencil was too closely at hand.

By their steady tramp-tramp to the radio Senators and Representatives must today be considerably more sympathetic to the idea of permanent microphones in their open forums. They certainly know by this time they can reach the brethern back home much quicker and much more intimately through the loudspeakers than through any other medium of communication.

Yet, were all Congressional opposition to the radio invasion of hallowed halls removed tomorrow it is doubtful if the broadcasters would send up any whooplas or start dancing in the streets of the Capital. The broadcasters have their own problems to consider. They have time to sell. They have audiences to entertain. They have clients to serve. And no matter how kindly disposed they might be to airing a spirit debate they would be pretty much at a loss to know when and how long the spirited debate was to take place.

The broadcasters, might, for example, get wind of some forthcoming hot words on prohibition in the Senate, might decide to cut off a household adviser or an astrologer for an hour in order to bring the hot words to the parlors only to discover, once they had made the arrangement, that the debators chosen for the particular broadcast were the dullest speakers in Washington, that what had promised to be a fiery program had turned out to be a dud.

The radio men also complain that debates are often impromptu, that a session that might promise nothing but long-winded discussion of the boll-weevil had suddenly resolved itself into a rip-roaring political battle in which names were called and congressmen were inviting each other outside to fight it out.

Can the radio men suddenly silence a program that pays them good money to turn microphones to the battle on Capitol Hills? Hardly. They have to know in advance, have to make their arrangements ahead.

Under the present system of legislative meetings in Washington they are not able to know in advance when something interesting is coming off.

Furthermore, the radio men claim that the majority of open forum talks from Capitol Hill would not be appealing to the listeners at large unless they were concerned with some topic of general interest. In a sense they are right.

But the broadcasters ought also to take into consideration that were microphones in general use in the aisles of the Senate and the House of lawmakers would be likely to adapt themselves to radio technique.

It is certain they would be less inclined to bunk and bombast, would use simpler, more understandable language and would be brief in their speeches. Certainly they would be briefer. And being brief, they would get more work done and consequently would please more of the peepul, more of the brethren back home.

TORCH SLAYER KILLS COUPLE

GREENWICH, Conn., June 2.—(AP.)—Police today were seeking an automobile stolen from the garage of Edwin H. Baker, New York produce broker, in the hopes of obtaining a clue to the slaying of Otto Vogel and his wife, Lucie, domestics in the Baker home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker were in New York when the bodies were found yesterday.

The bodies, partly burned by a smouldering mattress thrown over them, were found in an attic room of the Baker home when a workman discovered the fire. Their heads had been battered with a stove lifter.

Wanna Go Gliding?

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Latest sport for heavier-than-air pedestrians is gliding.

This business was started by the Wright brothers. But nobody's been Wright since.

A glider is made of paper, wood and easily combustible material. Then you varnish it with shellac and coat it with mucilage in case of a tie.

Anybody can build one from blueprints. But we ain't going to tell you where to get the blueprints because you are liable to build one.

It has wings on it like a bird, a tail like a fish, a body like an ironing board and an engine like a cruller.

There is no motive power except the wind. You just pull the glider over your head like a hat, tie it around your neck in a four-in-hand and whistle to your nearest living relatives.

Then you scrammister up a hill and jump off the top. That's the kid's last wise gallop.

The object of gliding is to flutter around the celestial mezzanine like a leaf in an autumn typhoon.

You flap your shoulder blades, wiggle your toes and everything is as fine as bobbed frog's hair. Then the next thing you remember is the last thing you forgot.

That's gliding. And there will be 1,600 gliders competing for the Kaiser's trophy over in Germany next month. They will all run up hills and jump off the back platform while the train is in motion.

Some of these gliders can stay up in the air three or four hours without building permits. But the sport will never get so popular that they will have to put taximeters in 'em. Fifteen cents for the first half mile and 5 cents for every bounce after that.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

NEW YORK, June 6.

AS AN EXAMPLE of theatrical conditions in these lean days, I think this little yarn is a classic. It comes from John D. Hymes and concerns the automobile salesman who walked up to the box office of one of Broadway's legitimate theaters on a recent afternoon. He waited until the box office man had finished the novel he was reading and then grew very confidential.

"Listen, mister," he began, "I'm going to ask a favor of you. Do you think you can help me out?"

"I'll try," replied the box office man. "What's on your mind?"

The salesman leaned still closer. "Whenever I go to the box office for tickets," the salesman went on, "they stick me in the last row. I want to take a hot prospect to your show tonight and I must have good seats. Can you sell me two seats that aren't in the last row?"

The ticket seller glanced at his rack. He nodded affably and plucked out two tickets.

"Glad to oblige," he asserted as he shoved the ducats forward. "Here are two very excellent seats for tonight's performance."

The buyer looked dubious.

The box office man was unusually polite.

"I'm positive, sir," he returned. "They're the very best in the house. That will be $7.70."

The salesman put the tickets in his pocket and drew out a roll of bills. He peeled off a $10 note.

"Thank you very much," he cried. "You're a real gentleman. Take a dollar out for yourself and buy a cigar. I'm much obliged to you."

"No trouble at all," murmured the ticket seller . . .

That evening found the salesman entering the theater with his prospective customer. The curtain rose on the first act and the salesman began to squirm in his seat. For fully 20 minutes he moved restlessly about in his seat. Finally he jumped up, excused himself to his prospect and rushed out to the box office.

"You're a fine gentleman," he growled at the man in the cage. "Didn't I explain my position to you this afternoon? Didn't I tell you about my hot prospect? Didn't I tell you I didn't want to sit in the last row?"

The ticket seller looked at the salesman in amazement. He had a right to be puzzled. He knew he had sold this man a choice location.

"I don't understand," he said. "Could I see your stubs for a moment?"

The salesman yanked out his stubs and tossed them to the ticket seller.

"There they are," he muttered.

The box official man glanced at the stubs and shrugged his shoulders. He was now fairly certain that he was dealing with a nut.

"But, my dear sir," he asserted, "these seats aren't in the last row. They're very good seats. They're row C."

The salesman banged the window.

"I don't care what letter they are," he howled. "They're the last row tonight!" . . . . . .

THE BARRING of Texas Guinan and her mob from England and France is amusing to me. I am sorry it happened, of course, but I can't help smiling when I get a mental picture of Miss Guinan telling those Frenchmen where they get off. Their reply, it seems, was very direct. They simply told her where she didn't get off.

Yes, sir. I would like to have been on the scene when Texas was informed that she wasn't wanted in Paris. The lady is notoriously undiplomatic. Instead of saying very little and getting a plea direct to the higher-ups, Texas began to talk. And when Texas waxes indignant she can get herself in more trouble than 14 members of the vice squad.

"I begin to understand why you Frenchies sent the Statue of Liberty over to America," she cried. "You have no use for it over here."

It was a good crack—but you can leave it to Tex to say the right thing at the wrong time. The lady is positively uncanny in that respect.

All this stuff about labor permits and such is strictly the hooey. The plain, unvarnished truth is that neither England nor France wanted La Guinan around. This shouldn't be much of a shock to Texas, inasmuch as even her own United States Government has intimated on several occasions that it would like to lock the lady up for a long time in some nice quite spot where her meals would be free.

I think both England and France made a mistake. Texas is a very likeable woman and has a great knowledge of the amusement game. She would have done extremely well in Parisian night life, where most of the clubs are as dull as a motion picture prologue. Far from hurting the Parisian night club business—as the French government said she would do—Miss Guinan would have boosted it. You cannot hurt any type of enterprise by a revival of interest in it.

Be that as it may, however, I don't think this episode will do Miss Guinan any harm. She will return to America as something of a heroine, which will be a new role for Tex. She has made the front pages again—and her vaudeville contracts should be fat and heavy when she signs them. As the Countess of Cathcarte once said: "It's an ill barring that blows no stage work."

Come to think of it, though, Texas might not accept any more money for her work. I see by the papers that she made some additional statements.

"I didn't sail for Paris to make money," she is quoted as saying. "I merely wanted to give the Parisians a good time. I had no thought of money."

Next week: "East Lynne." . . .

OUT IN the Middle West, a college professor has again predicted the end of the world. This makes the ninth time he has made the same prediction in the last 17 years.

That guy has one consolation, anyhow. He's getting closer with each prediction. . . .

WOULD YOU LEAVE HOME FOR SOUTH SEA LOVE?

He couldn't help answering the call of this beautiful little savage, singing, dancing beneath the palms of a tropic isle. He left his white man's society for her charms beneath the golden moon of that land of indolent ease. But he found more than love—a land that stirred primitive emotions in the very depths of his soul! A thrilling answer to what happens when "the Twain" do meet.

HINT SHIPWRECK DUE TO RUM

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—(AP)—As tugs jockeyed with tides today to save the S. S. Harvard, wrecked Saturday off Point Arguello, investigations into the cause of the mishap centered about the condition of the weather and the crew.

Capt. S. A. Kennedy, in charge of an inquiry here, said he would investigate reports of the use of liquor by the crew and that the weather was clear at the time. Original reports from the Harvard said it went aground in a blinding fog.

Capt. A. M. Wennerlund, of the freighter San Anselmo, which aided in the safe transfer of the 497 passengers, testified at a federal hearing in San Francisco that reports all the Harvard's crew was "drunk" were unfounded. He said, however, that two stewards, who had no part in navigation of the vessel, were "as drunk as any man could get."

Real Estate

An unimproved business lot with a frontage of 37½ feet at 5631-33 Penn avenue has been sold for $42,500 by William G. Moore to the Abco Realty Company, according to the United States Realty Company, downtown brokers.

The lot extends back 145 feet to Kirkwood street. The price paid for the property is considered very low by the United States Realty Company.

RENTALS GOOD

Porter & MacDowell, renting agents for the Standard Life Building, Fourth avenue and Smithfield street, report a highly successful season in office renting.

In the Standard Life Building only five of a total of 96 offices are unoccupied, the agents say. The unoccupied offices are expected to be rented shortly. Porter & MacDowell explain that many new tenants were secured this year despite only minor reductions in rentals.

The Pittsburgh Real Estate Board was to hold its weekly luncheon meeting today in the William Penn Hotel.

The honor guest was to be L. T. Stevenson, newly elected president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and president of Stevenson-Williams Company, South Hills realtors.

Following the luncheon Roy R. Cappe, president of the board, and J. W. Cree, Jr., president of the Pennsylvania Real Estate Association, were to discuss the convention of the national association held in Baltimore last week. Business disposed of at the convention and questions of particular interest to Pittsburgh realtors were to be included in Cree's and Cappe's talks.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Virginia E. Furey, First Bride of June, Weds at Afternoon Ceremony

Before I tell you about entertainments to be given for Elizabeth Wells, whose wedding will take place Monday, I want to talk about one of the loveliest weddings I've ever seen, which took place yesterday afternoon in Shadyside Presbyterian Church.

The sun came out in all its glory for the wedding and the reception at the beautiful Longue Vue Country Country Club. And the very first bride of June, wed on the first day of the month was Virginia English Furey, daughter of the William Morris Fureys, and the bridegroom was Dr. David Alexander Cooper, of Philadelphia, son of Mrs. John D. Cooper, of Henderson, N. C. Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr.

Ferns and crotons and clusters of pink hydrangeas and euyonimus formed a background for a prie dieu. And three pairs of seven-branched candlesticks lighted the wedding scene.

Exquisite Gowns

An exquisite Vionet gown of heavy ivory satin, fashioned with long sleeves, a round neck-line, and diagonal treatment of the skirt, which fell in back in one of the longest court trains I've ever seen, was worn by the happy bride whom the sun shone on. Her veil of ivory tulle falling the full length of the train cascaded from an exquisite cap of rose point lace and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of creamy gardenias, white bovardia and orange blossoms, showered with lilies of the valley.

Mrs. W. Rankin Furey, as matron of honor, and Eleanor Rowe as maid of honor, wore similar gowns of apricot chiffon, having full, flowing skirts and beruffled berthas of the same material, dipping to the waistline in back and tied at the side. Their picture hats of horsehair braid and their slippers matched their gowns in color, and they carried exquisite Dresden bouquets bordered in apricot tulle.

Bridal Party

The young ring-bearer was William Morris Furey II, nephew of the bride. Marshall Y. Cooper was best man, and W. Rankin Furey, brother of the bride; Vance Harper and Edward Willock, of Pittsburgh; John Zollicoffer, of Henderson, N. C.; Dr. Leon Collins, of Philadelphia; Dr. Thomas Zulick, of Easton, Pa.; Morgan Cooper, of New York, a cousin of Dr. Cooper, and James Cooper, a brother, were ushers.

The mother of the bride wore pale blue chiffon with a hat to match, and the mother of the bridegroom, black chiffon. Both had shoulder corsages of orchids.

After the ceremony the bridal party motored to Longue Vue Country Club for the reception and wedding dinner. Garden flowers in all the gay colors of late spring decked the clubhouse for the event.

The bride's table, with covers laid for 32, was covered with a cloth of silver and centered by a fountain playing in the light of silver candelabras holding burning blue and pink tapers. Calla lilies and garden flowers in pink and blue shades were the floral decorations. Tables for the guests were arranged on the spacious terraces of the clubhouse, and were decorated with colorful garden flowers.

Gowns In Gay Hues

Ellen McClay wore a deep beige crepe dress, tucked at the neckline, and a lettuce green coat and straw hat, and Helen Murdoch, who arrived with her, looked lovely in a gray ensemble. Figured green chiffon was worn by Mrs. Charles S. Wunder. Helen and Betty McCance were there, and Marjorie Kimball chose a navy blue jacket and a skirt of green. Among the late arrivals were Mary Carroll and Mrs. Stephen Stone and her two daughters, Mrs. Sidney A. Stewart and Mrs. Edward Purcell Mellon II, who wore a creamy beige ensemble.

Mrs. William Penn Snyder was there, and Barbara Ewing in flowered blue and white crepe. Elizabeth George and Emily Stuart arrived together.

Mrs. Francis deLacey Hyde wore a turquoise blue silk suit, and Frances Johnston a beige coat and hat. Frances Reed was there, too, and ever so many folks I don't have the space to mention.

Guest at Fetes

A bride of Monday, Elizabeth Dewey Wells, daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Glyde Wells, of the Schenley Apartments, is being feted extensively this week. Elizabeth, you know, is to marry Rowland Erving, son of Mrs. Rowland H. Erving, of Cathedral Mansions, and the ceremony will take place at 4:30 o'clock in the Third Presbyterian Church.

Tomorrow Kathleen Guthrie is giving a bridge party in the Fox Chapel Golf Club, and Saturday night the Calvin Wellses are giving the rehearsal dinner in the Allegheny Country Club. Sunday, at noon, the Louis Blakes Hayes will give a luncheon in their Beechwood boulevard home.

Sunday night there will be a buffet supper honoring the bride-elect, given by the Frank E. Nicholsons, in their Woodland road residence in Sewickley.

Monday noon Dr. and Mrs. Paul Titus will be hosts at the wedding breakfast at Fox Chapel Golf Club.

Church Wedding

Miss Eleanor Shrum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shrum, of Irwin, Pa., is being married today at 4:30 o'clock to George Llewellyn Eynon, son of Mrs. Ada S. Eynon, of Pittsburgh, in the First Presbyterian Church of Irwin.

Miss Carolyn Shrum is her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids include a sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. G. R. Hanna, of

New Congress Head Takes Office

Suggesting the study of international relations, an investment in friendliness, co-operation, community work and personal responsibility as aims for her administration, Mrs. T. M. Stahlman took office yesterday as president of the Congress of Clubs. Yesterday was "administration day" at the clubhouse—the day on which the new officers assume their duties—and to celebrate there was an informal reception, a program and tea.

The officers, both old and new, and the social chairman, Mrs. H. G. Taylor, received together in the lounge. The program by Mrs. Frank W. Myler, contralto, and Mrs. G. B. Cooley, cellist, with Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell and Mrs. Warren V. Hartz as accompanists, was given in the auditorium. It was there, too, that Mrs. George J. Campbell, first vice president, presented Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, retiring president, with a book in which are inscribed the names of all those who contributed towards the $2,000 paid on the mortgage fund in Mrs. Johnston's honor.

Decorations of yellow and purple iris, red and white peonies and other spring blooms made the clubhouse gay throughout, and in the dining room the tea table had a center of lavendar lace flowers, pink roses, half blown, and Shasta daisies. Bowls of pansies were placed on the serving tables.

Group Formed

A new organization, the McKeesport Social Work Council, has been formed to co-ordinate the work of social agencies and other groups interested in community welfare. Mrs. Dorothy Krow has been made chairman; Miss Elizabeth Morrison, vice chairman; Mrs. Beulah Russell, secretary, and William H. Cox, treasurer, and the executive committee includes W. A. Robb, the Rev. John F. C. Green and Miss Zillah Grimes. Meetings will be held the third Monday of each month in the McKeesport Y. W. C. A.

IDEAL SPORTS FROCKS MUST BE SMART AND PRACTICAL

Sketched in Paris

(Copyright, 1931, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, June 2.—It often takes a lot of sprinting about to obtain the ideal sports frock, but when found it becomes an almost inseparable summer companion. But this year we are to have smart and practical sports frocks in abundance, since nearly every designer has concentrated on this type of garment. The new sports frocks are equally appropriate in town, suburb or country. They are not too severe or plain, nor yet too fussy, a smart compromise between the two extremes has been drawn. Whatever the details or trimming used, the affect is always harmonious and appropriate to the general scheme of the frock. For general wear on cooler days a good sports dress is ideal for all but the formal occasion. This is the type of dress that proves invaluable for the summer wardrobe.

The sports frock sketch is from Bruyere. It is fashioned of heavy woolen jersey in bright green. Hand-done eyelet embroidery trims the wide rever and the little looped tabs at the side of the bodice. Little pointed capelets attached at the top only serve as sleeves. The skirt is composed of a close, deep yoke and a box-pleated flounce.

Here are the new

Every time we get new shoe-shipments, we marvel at the value which our factories are building into Nisley Shoes today. Old City Hall Squatter Defies Ouster Attempts

MINISTERS DENOUNCE VICE IN HILL DISTRICT

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

Ben Anderson picked up a copy of a comic weekly the other day and read a joke which was based on one which he spread half a dozen years ago or so. It is a good illustration of how contagious jokes are.

Ben was down at the lumber camp of his boss, E. V. Babcock, when he ran across the story. He came back home and told it around at banquets and to friends. Joe Mackrell heard it and liked it and adopted it. In fact, Joe told the story one night at a dinner in Washington. Senator Capper was at the dinner and heard the story. A few months later the Senator wrote to Mackrell and told him he wanted to use that story but couldn't quite remember the salient points. He asked Mackrell to repeat it in writing. Mackrell turned the letter over to Ben Anderson and Anderson gave Capper the story again and Capper used to tell it at various affairs.

And the one day Ben dropped into the Davis and was surprised to hear his story coming to him over the footlights from a two-a-day comedian.

The story was about a typical mountaineer, unused to civilization, who had bought a mirror from a peddler. The mountaineer thought he was really buying a photograph of his father. He took it home and ever so often he would take it out and look at it seriously and hide it away again. This secrecy made his wife suspicious, so one day she took out the mirror (it was the first one she had ever seen) and looking into the glass, said:

"So this is the old hag that he's been worrying about."

He is the young, wealthy scion of an old Pittsburgh family. One night, a few months ago, alone in the family's exclusive suburban home, he felt the need of a drink or two. From the cellar he took a bottle of mellowed whisky. Like all good drinkers, he wanted somebody to join him. There was nobody in the house, so he put in a fire alarm, and when a half-dozen volunteers clanged their way to the house he invited them in, set down the bottle and announced:

"Boys, there's no fire, but what do you say if we have a drink?"

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 2.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Poor Texas Guinan and her gang were just unfortunate. She happened to hit France right after the American mayors, so France says, "One show troop at a time is enough for us." Give Tex credit she wouldn't have delivered a chamber of commerce speech at the Unknown Soldier's Tomb.

Will Rogers

But there is not much sympathy for Tex. Anybody that makes a living off "suckers" should never have to leave this country in a professional capacity.

Yours, WILL.

FUNDS LACKING, STILL HOLDS KEYS

Turning Off Lights Fails To Rout Working Girls' 'Friend' From Property

Mrs. Helen Uptegraff, 60, self-styled "friend of the unemployed working girls," today remained firmly entrenched in her quarters in the old City Hall, Smithfield street and Oliver avenue, from where county officials have unsuccessfully tried to oust her for four weeks.

James E. Routley, chief clerk in the County Commissioners' office, said the woman had been granted permission to establish a home for unemployed working girls in the building in the belief that she was a Y. W. C. A. worker. Mrs. Updegraff said she would conduct the home along the lines of the Helping Hand Society.

No finances were obtainable and Routley ordered her to leave. She refused. He had the lights turned off. She didn't care.

On the front of the building she posted a sign:

"Working Girls' Home, Office Hours 6 to 10 p. m."

And so, armed with a key to the building and a letter of permission from the commissioners, she continued to live in six rooms and a bath "quite comfortable," to use her own words.

U. S. Financiers Get Experience By Staking Europe

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

That new government bond issue indicates that Andy Mellon and Prof. Piccard discovered stratosphere at the same time.

That stuff is very hard to inhale, so we will take ours by television for a while.

When bankers start breathing three-and-one-eighth per cent you know that somebody reversed the vacuum cleaners and the boys are getting dust with their oxygen.

We should have no trouble financing ourselves after all the practice we've had staking Europe.

The bonds will be issued June 15 in the merry old month of orange blossoms and lemon peels. There will be eight hundred million dollars worth.

And the government stands in back of every dollar. Which is much better than Europe, where a government can stand in back of a dime.

CONSTABLE JACOB MINTZ ON THE SIDEWALK DISTRIBUTING PERISHABLE FOODS SEIZED ON LANDLORD'S WARRANT TO THE HILL DISTRICT'S NEEDY

Free food! Crowds jammed the Phillip Frishman grocery store, 1625 Center avenue, when Constable Mintz, executing a landlord's warrant, seized the store's stock. The landlord told Alderman Saul S. Goldstein to have his men give every perishable bit of food to the Hill district's hungry, needy families.

BAPTISTS URGE CURB ON PERIL TO YOUTH

Resolution Voicing Protest Appeals for Safeguards From 'Deadly Influences'

Charging that vice is rampant in the vicinity of churches and schools in the Hill district, the Baptist Ministerial Conference of Pittsburgh and vicinity today was on record as demanding of authorities the improvement of conditions.

In a resolution passed yesterday, proposed by its chairman, the Rev. W. W. Boone, the conference condemned the lawlessness near "educational institutions and other public places where youth is brought in contact with this deadly influence."

Passage of the resolution came after discussion of the situation as recently revealed in the Sun-Telegraph by Hill district ministers, school principals and social workers. The resolution, signed by the Rev. Boone and the Rev. L. D. W. Mason, secretary, read:

"Whereas, there is reported a steady increase in lawlessness in various sections of the Hill district, in the form of speakeasies, disorderly houses and other forms of vice, even in close proximity to churches and educational institutions and other public places where youth is brought in contact with such deadly influence,

"Therefore, be it resolved that we, the Baptist Ministerial Conference of Pittsburgh and vicinity, register our protest against existence of vice and urge that the public press, together with the officers of the law, shall devote their attention to correction of these conditions for the protection of our schools, churches and youth."

Prize Beauty Reveals Strange Aftermath of Magnate's Romances

By CHARLOTTE NASH NIXON-NIRDLINGER

This is the seventh installment of her own life story by Mrs. Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger who, after a sensationally brief trial in Nice, France, was recently acquitted of the murder of her husband.

In previous chapters she told of her meteoric rise from obscurity to the pinnacle of a beauty queen; how she met the wealthy Philadelphia theater magnate and, after a whirlwind courtship, eloped and married him—only to find he had another wife! Today Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger tells of the revelation by her husband of his past romantic life and the dramatic episodes that followed.

Just why Fred Nixon-Nirdlinger should have deceived me about his marital affairs I do not know. In the very beginning he could have admitted that he was married and, since I thought I loved him, I could have waited. But he deceived me.

When at last he told me the true story—and I had heard more about it from other sources—I was astonished. Certainly it was not because he had been married twice. No woman is concerned about a man's past, even though it is true that all men are deeply interested in the past of the women they love. This is one of the inexplicable mysteries of society.

When it comes to marriage, a man usually insists that his woman must have a record that always has been clean. A woman asks only that her man erase the slate of all the past. Fred Nixon-Nerdlinger knew that I came into his life an innocent, trusting girl. I, on the other hand, was not concerned about his past. All that I knew, and wanted to know, was that he was single, honest, trustworthy and loved me. He seemed to me to fit into this simple ideal.

Bride Grieved

But the final revelation that he had hidden from me two marriages—one from which he was not even legally severed—astonished and grieved me. Slowly he told me his story, and slowly I learned more about it from other sources.

While in his early twenties, Fred became enamoured of Tessie Burke, an actress playing in Willard Spencer's famous operetta, "Princess Bonnie." The star of that show, by the way, was Eleanor Mayo, who later married James Elverson, Jr., son of a Philadelphia publisher.

Fred and the actress, Tessie, were married. Two sons were born of the union—Samuel F. Nirdlinger, who lives in Merion, Pa., in the ultra-fashionable Main Line district, and Jack Nixon-Nirdlinger, who lives in New York.

An associate who knew them at this time said Tessie was one of the prettiest actresses he ever had seen. He stated that she was a "superior woman," refined and cultured. She was the type of woman who did not expect too much of a man, but who had self-respect sufficient to revolt when things went too far. There came a time, I understand, when she bitterly resented the attention her husband paid to others.

Delegates Visit Former Pastorates

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Callen, of Fort Wayne, Ind., and the Rev. Dr. Leon Stewart, of Fort Collins, Col., who are in Pittsburgh as delegates to the Presbyterian General Assembly, have been visitors at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, East End, where both have served as pastors. Dr. Callen was pastor of the church for 14 years, and Dr. Stewart for seven years.

Hunt Victims After Fire Destroys Shed

Downtown firemen were called out early to extinguish flames which destroyed a small frame shed on the bank of the Allegheny River at the foot of Tenth street. Police believe that the fire was started by vagrants sleeping in the shed. Believing that some of the homeless men may have been burned, firemen searched the ruins but found no indiaction of casualities.

CANINE HEROINE SPARED

Her Illness Cured, Life Saved

MISS MARY MORAN WITH HEROINE: PATSY, GERMAN POLICE DOG FROM HOMEWOOD

Patsy, happy dog at the Humane Society, Bigelow boulevard, since Secretary W. F. H. Wentzel tried a new cure, eliminated disease for which she would have had to be put to death. Owner William T. Moran, 7616 Hamilton avenue, wanted to keep her. She chased burglars.

TROLLEYS AGAIN JAMMED

Standing room was at a premium again today on many trolley cars along the Emsworth, Bellevue and Avalon lines. Important intersections on these routes were also marked by crowds awaiting transportation to Pittsburgh.

The Pittsburgh Railways Company said this was due to adoption of the summer schedule yesterday, and its check today showed service normal. However, residents of the North Boroughs continued to complain because of the discontinuance of trailers.

Persons waiting at Balph avenue, Termon and California avenues, Island avenue and the High Bridge, said single cars, heavily loaded before they left Bellevue, sped toward Pittsburgh without stopping.

Braddock and Rankin Schools Hold Picnic

School children from Braddock and Rankin were being entertained at Kennywood Park today at their annual school picnic. James E. McDonald, William C. Roderus, George Miller and Emil Mura arranged an elaborate program of sports and entertainment. Tomorrow the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade will hold the annual school and community outing for residents of the district. The Sixteenth Ward School picnic will be held at Kennywood on June 16. It had previously been published that the picnic was to be held today.

FLIGHT THRILLS WOMAN OF 81

After a 15-minute airplane ride, Mrs. Maria Andelman, 81, a great-grandmother, was "sold" on the idea of aerial transportation today, and insisted that when she goes to New York to visit her children there she will make the trip by plane.

Mrs. Andelman

Mrs. Andelman, residing with her daughter, Mrs. Anna Sherman, of 5540 Baywood street, went to Bettis Field to see the planes, and was so attracted that she decided to "go up."

Following her ride, she said:

"It is most thrilling. Never again will I hesitate, and when I go to New York I'm going to go by airplane."

Ask Retrial in Suit Over Fight of Boys

Motion for a new trial will be asked tomorrow in the case of Walter M. Eckbreth, Jr., 6, against John H. McMahon, both of Monongahela. Thomas L. Anderson, defense attorney, said today. The Eckbreth boy was given a verdict Friday of $3,300 against McMahon, a teller in a Monongahela bank, as the result of an alleged fight between himself and McMahon's son, Wallace.

2 Mules Suffocated In Coal Firm Fire

Two mules were suffocated when fire broke out last night in the blacksmith shop and stable of the United States Coal Company, at 3506 Wenzel way.

The building, a one-story frame, was enveloped in flames when firemen arrived. Battalion Chief Herman Weihrauch estimated the damage at $650. The cause was undetermined.

Mother Dead, Park Clown Carries On With Show

The show must go on.

Remembering the creed of theatrical and circus folk, Billy Lorette, clown policeman at Kennywood Park, entertained hundreds of school children yesterday, laughing and smiling the entire time, although he had just received word of his mother's death.

A few weeks ago Billy visited his mother, who was ill in Brooklyn, and at that time she made him promise that he would not disappoint his audience even though he should receive word of her death during a performance. The word came at noon yesterday, and although Billy's heart was heavy, he gave his afternoon and evening performances for school children.

CLEANUP DRIVE CENTERS IN HILL AREA

Refuse Being Removed From District in Drive to Rid City of Health Menaces

The cleanup campaign under the direction of T. Lloyd Pillow, superintendent of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers, today goes into its second day with work being concentrated in the Hill district.

City property at Webster avenue and Crawford street, where rubbish had been allowed to accumulate, was cleaned up yesterday. Five trucks furnished by the Retail Coal Dealers Association are hauling ashes and rubbish to city dumps.

Attempts will be made to have the trucks reach 110 addresses furnished by sanitary inspectors. Among these places are a number to which attention was called by the Sun-Telegraph in its campaign to improve the appearance of the city. Officials said the drive to remove dangerous and unsightly buildings is going ahead steadily in the Bureau of Building Inspection.

LIQUID FUELS TAX BECOMES EFFECTIVE

New Act Expected to Save State Large Sum; Permit To Sell Now Necessary

Motorists in Pennsylvania will still be permitted to subtract three cents on every gallon of gasoline they purchase when making out their income tax return, despite the new state liquid fuels tax act which became effective yesterday, providing for the collection of the tax on gasoline from the distributors or wholesalers instead of from the retailers.

This statement was given by the United States Internal Revenue office here today.

The new tax act, signed by Gov. Pinchot on May 21, is expected to effect a large saving in the annual revenue from this source, because it reduces the number of points from which the tax revenue will flow into the state treasury, according to state tax officials at Harrisburg.

Secretary of Revenue Clyde D. King issued a statement in which he said:

"The Department of Revenue has made every effort to insure the flow of uninterrupted business by distributors. It is not the department's intention to hamper legitimate business. It will enforce the law."

With the new act in effect, it is unlawful for any distributor to continue to engage in the sale or delivery of liquid fuels in the state without a permit issued by the Department of Revenue.

EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE TO ELECT

Jewish National Council Will Name Heads Today; Dinner to End Meeting

The conference of the National Council for Jewish Education now in session here will be brought to a close tonight with a public dinner. The election of officers will feature the last day's meeting. More than 150 delegates are attending the meeting which opened Sunday. Sessions are being held in the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A.

Dr. Emanuel Gamoran, director of synagogue and school extension, of Cincinnati, addressed the delegates at a meeting last night. He said that while a marked increase has been noted during the last few years on the part of many congregations in Jewish education, little has been done to show their sense of communal responsibility for education.

Dr. Mordecai Soltes, of the extension board, also spoke last night. A. P. Schoolman, of New York, another speaker, recommended that the council expand the scope of its activities to include a department of principals of Jewish religious schools in addition to the present membership.

Other speakers yesterday were Dr. L. L. Honor, of Chicago; Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner, of Cleveland; Dr. Ludwig B. Bernstein, of Pittsburgh; Dr. S. Benderly, of New York; A. H. Friedland, of Cleveland; Dr. Jacob S. Golub, of Cincinnati; Ben Edidin, of Buffalo; Louis Hurwich, of Boston, and Israel Eisenberg, Ben Rosen and S. Dinin, of New York.

THE words "just like Kotex" should be a danger signal to every purchaser of sanitary protection! They cannot be true.

A pad, to be like Kotex, would have to be made in the Kotex factory. Unique, patented machinery makes Kotex from start to finish. Hands never touch it. Rigid cleanliness prevails. Materials used are superior, made especially for Kotex. The only way to make a pad like Kotex is to make Kotex.

Take no chances. Specify genuine Kotex. Accept no substitute of whose makers you know nothing. You know Kotex is safe. Hospitals used more than 10,000,000 pads last year. Their choice should be yours.

Kotex is adjustable. May be worn on either side. Stays soft.

GOTHAM AND HOLLYWOOD NEWS; LOCAL AMUSEMENT HAPPENINGS

Lily Damita to Be Starred In Original Film Story, Titled 'The Pickup'

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.

HOLLYWOOD, June 2.

Sometime in the near future Lily Damita will be starred by Radio Pictures in "The Pickup," an original screen story by Louis Weitzenkorn, author of "Five Star Final."

Cooling down from the white heat of indignation in which he attacked the tabloids, the former newspaperman turns to Europe for a background for his new story. His hero is a disillusioned American and his heroine a woman of the streets.

Lily Damita

As a sort of cynical joke the hero takes the girl under his protection and sets her up in expensive fashion. Soon she marries a millionaire but in the meanwhile has fallen in love with her benefactor.

THIS MODERN AGE

The story goes about Hollywood that little Robert Coogan was much impressed recently by his first sight of a rainbow.

Turning to Jack Sr., he asked:

"What is that supposed to advertise, Pa?"

LATEST GOSSIP

Lupe Velez left last week to open a vaudeville engagement in New York. Perhaps it is only a coincidence, but Gary Cooper boarded a train last Thursday night for the same destination. King Vidor and Eleanor Boardman are back in town, having cruised down from Seattle in their boat. King starts "Street Scene" June 10 . . . Antique furniture and interior decorating are more than a hobby with Bill Haines. He has just decorated Joan Crawford's house in Beverly Hills and Leila Hyams' place at Malibu . . . Rex Bell and his friend, "Big Boy" Guinn Williams, are spending two weeks counting Clara's cows at the "It" girl's ranch in Nevada . . . David Selznick sent Dick Arlen a list of pictures he has to do in the next few months, with the attached note:

"How much for your yacht?"

DESPERATE FELLOWS

Out on Sunset boulevard, near the old "poverty row," a large crowd collected yesterday behind one of those dining-car restaurants. Breaking through, I discovered two hard-bitten screen cowboys in the middle of a crowding ring.

"Do you want to fight?" snarled one.

"Do you?" snapped the other.

"Well, put up your hands!"

"Well, put up your own!"

In belligerent attitude, they stalled for several moments. Finally, they struck out simultaneously, and the desperate battle ended without another blow. A disappointed crowd drifted away and the two virile-looking desperadoes faded out of sight.

Shades of the old West!

LEILA'S JOB

The center of masculine rivalry in "Sea Eagles" will be Leila Hyams.

She has just been given the assignment by Director George Hill, who will have an expensive cast working in his picture. Robert Montgomery, Wallie Beery and Clarke Gable are the masculine trio already named.

"Sea Eagles" is about the adventures of naval aviators. A cameraman was sent to Panama to make atmospheric shots of the fleet's maneuvers.

Screen in Harris Has Betty Compson

"A Lady Refuses," featuring Betty Compson, is the current attraction on the Harris screen. An added feature is "The Fighting Sheriff," with Betty Compson.

Gain pounds of weight in few weeks with new IRONIZED YEAST—a special combination of dried brewer's yeast plus iron — or pay nothing

Thousands are amazed at quick benefits of new Ironized Yeast. They gained pounds of good firm flesh in few weeks. Tired, weak, nervous people became peppy and strong. Blemished complexions changed to clear rosy smoothness. Constipation, indigestion disappeared. Why does Ironized Yeast work so smooth?

Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—special weight-building dried brewer's Yeast and blood-enriching, strengthening iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured and concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value. Double-tested for strength, purity and potency. Used by doctors and big hospitals.

To this concentrated dried brewer's Yeast is added three kinds of easily assimilated iron to quickly make rich, red blood and tone up nerves and muscles. By this special process Ironized Yeast is made more effective than yeast and iron taken separately. Has no starches, flours or gas-forming fillers.

If you are underweight, nervous, tired—if you suffer with constipation, indigestion and your complexion is muddy or blemished, start Ironized Yeast today. Pleasant little tablets—no nasty taste, never upset stomach or cause gas or bloating. Never spoil; safe for all.

Once he was producing eggs from a silk hat into which he had placed a few watches.

"She could, too!" disputed the boy.

"How?"

"She keeps ducks."

Many players in the movies are persons of versatile talents, as we discovered when the talkies revealed some veteran screen favorites in possession of means of entertaining not thought of by movie fans. An unusual accomplishment is credited David Manners, who is reputed to be a ventriloquist. He makes use of his art in a forthcoming production, "The Miracle Woman."

Don't Listen to Pleas of 'Playboy' Husbands

Are you "falling for a Married Man"—

Believing that he loves you, and is simply panting to divorce his wife and lead you to the altar in her place?

And do you think it's all Perfectly, Georgeously Thrilling and Daring and Romantic?

Then stop, look and listen . . . while Carol broadcasts her side of a story like that.

Five years ago the Big Boy began crooning in her ear . . . telling her that he "couldn't live without her" and that just as soon as he could manage it—

LIKED MARRIED MAN

Well, she swallowed his line. For five years when she might have been facing a happy future . . . finding real Romance that she could acknowledge before the world . . . she's been dodging around corners to meet him on the sneak . . . waiting for him to keep his word . . . And now? Why now, he tells her that he can't think of a divorce because "his children need him" . . . so —

"Dear Sally:

"I am simply broken-hearted. I wonder if you can console me a little? I don't know what I am going to do. It seems as if my life were just ended . . . and I am only 23 . . . yet I feel as if I were a thousand.

"Five years ago, I met a man who was married, and who wasn't getting along well with his wife. He didn't seem to notice me at first, but after a little while he began to make opportunities to be near me and I began to realize that I was falling in love with him. Then he told me that he loved me . . . and that he didn't care for his wife or she for him . . . and that he would get a divorce and marry me as soon as he could.

CHANGED HIS MIND

"I believed him, Sally, because I loved him better than life itself. So I went out with him, even though we had to be very careful not to go to any places where people would know us, because we didn't want to start a scandal. At first, he talked constantly about getting his divorce, and how happy we would be when he did, and I could become his wife.

"For five years now, I've given him all my time, believed him, looked forward to the time when we could be together . . . and now that I have wasted the best years of my life on him, he tells me that he can never get a divorce on account of his children, who need him.

"And, oh! I still love him! Every day it is the same old thing, in spite of the way he has treated me. I am always thinking of him, wondering what he is doing, when I will see him, till I can't even do my work. I can't seem to get along without him. I feel so hopeless. What can I do? He has wrecked my life. CAROL."

So you think this man has wrecked your life, do you?

Well, you're mistaken. You have wrecked your life . . . if it is wrecked. You were willing enough to make a grab for what you thought you wanted, even though you knew it belonged to someone else. And now that you've got your fingers burnt, you want to lay the blame on someone else.

A SILLY MISTAKE

As a matter of fact, your life is not wrecked, if you'll use a little spunk and common sense. You've made a selfish, silly mistake . . . but you aren't the only one who has done that. Mistakes are common as fleas on a stray pup . . . but they needn't be fatal . . .

What'll you do to redeem yours? Snap out of this bad dream you're wallowing in. Deliberately crowd it and its memories out of your life, by filling that life so full of other things that you won't have time to think about that affair.

No, it won't be easy. But if you'll stiffen up your backbone, square your chin, and go to it, you can win! You can be free. You can have real life again—not this feverish fantasy—and be happy. And get over the idea, honey, that you've given this hunka suet "the best years of your life." The best . . . the happiest . . . years of your life are ahead, if you'll step out and go after them!

'In Love'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"I'M in LOVE!" sings the robin in a brand-new copper-colored vest. (If only these poor men of ours could wear a red vest in the springtime to set themselves off!)

"I'm in Love!" sings Gloriette, falling straight out of everyday life into a land of pink clouds, flitting dreams, rosy Cupids, enchanting perfumes, everlasting flowers, undying bliss.

Let us look about us, and listen, and read; keep our ears up and our eyes wide, and the old sconce alert, and see what IS this LOVE! What it means when they say, "I'M IN LOVE." When they CROW, "I'M in LOVE!"

If you believe your eyes and ears you will get some strange ideas about it. You will see a young lady in a state of rapturous hypnosis, up to the very tip of her chin, which is all that shows, in a golden syrupy sea. Perfectly happy in that odd pose. That is being "head over ears!"

If you believe all you hear about it you will see a young person bundled up in pretty blue and pink coverlids, in lace frills, a bandage about her dizzy head and tears in her blue eyes. With nothing—so far as the doctor can tell—the matter with her. That is the state of being "Love-sick!" Terrible—and lovely, too.

If you believe all you read you will glimpse the fantastic sight of a young woman walking jauntily along, pretty as a pippin from the neck down—from there up you cannot tell what she look like—for her head is wrapped in a fat, fleecy, rosy cloud that goes with her as she goes. That is "having your head in a cloud." Strange—but they say—delightful!

All of this is being in love. BEING IN LOVE—and a captivating, angelic state it is.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Wait Until After the Honeymoon

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. A friend wishes to hold a reception at his boarding house in honor of his marriage. Is it correct for the invitations to be sent in his name, as the reception is to take place immediately after his wedding?

2. How would an answer be worded in accepting such an invitation or in declining it?

WONDERING BEE.

1. I'd like to urge you to urge your friend not to do this, for it would be in the worst kind of form. It is never good form for the groom to have any responsibility about the wedding festivities, and surely not under these circumstances. Either the wedding party should be given by the bride's family or the bride, or there should not be any party of this kind. It would, then, be better form for the bride and groom to wait until they have returned from their honeymoon, and then give a party in their new home.

2. This would depend on what kind and form of invitation is sent. If an informal note is written, then you should answer with a note.

Today's Toasts Are Usually Informal

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. If two are present and a man makes a toast to a woman—does he stand? Does she remain seated?

2. If at a farewell dinner for women only, one woman makes a toast to the guest of honor, would the toastmaker stand? Also would everyone else stand, too? A. H.

1. If only two were present, neither would stand when the man makes the toast. The man would raise his glass, and the woman would bow and thank him for his courtesy and thought.

2. The toastmaker might or might not stand . . . as she wishes. It gives a more formal touch to the "toasting" if she stands, and usually nowadays toasts the not of a formal nature. Probably the proposer of the toast would simply raise her glass and would not stand, and the other women would raise their glasses and would not stand.

Impolite to Omit Her

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to have a luncheon to announce the engagement of my sister and I would like to know whether her fiance's mother should be invited?

We hope you will continue writing your splendid column for a long time to come. We enjoy reading it so much and have found it very helpful. MISS V. V.

Yes, this is the courteous thing to do. Indeed, it would be impolite to omit such an important invitation.

(Thank you!)

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Spinal "Crooks" Often Due to Faulty Posture

"Scoliosis" is a harsh word, hard to spell and to pronounce. It is the name of an unpleasant condition.

Dr. Copeland

By scoliosis is meant a distortion of the spinal column, resulting in a lateral displacement, or twisting. The twist occurs either toward the right or left side of the body, always away from the middle. No longer is the spine straight up and down, but it dips to one side.

As a result of this condition the body is carried at an abnormal angle. The shoulders are not on the same level—one is higher than the other. On examination, there may be seen a bulging of the shoulder bone.

Of course, there are all degrees of this condition. Many cases are quite apparent and may be detected by anyone. Other cases are so mild that only the experienced eye can discover them.

Scoliosis may be caused by one of several conditions. It may be a result of certain diseases of the bone, such as rickets and tuberculosis. It may follow what is known as "arthritis deformans." It may be produced by congenital hip disease. The treatment in these cases depends upon the care and cure of the underlying trouble.

Likewise, scoliosis may be a functional disturbance. By this is meant that the condition is not due to change of structure by disease, but is the result of faulty posture.

The last is the most common form and it is a type most easily remedied. As a matter of fact, we are so alive to its dangers that we have thrown away our defective school furniture, which used to be one of the chief causes of this condition.

Modern schools are furnished with desks and seats that are adjustable to the size of the pupil. By proper seating, no undue strain is placed upon the back of the growing child.

Scoliosis is frequently seen in adults. It is common in blacksmiths, fencing masters and waiters. It is of frequent occurrence in any occupation where excessive use of one arm impairs the normal posture of the body.

In children, training in posture and special exercises are recommended. These exercises must be given under the supervision of one who is an expert in this particular work.

Every effort should be made to prevent scoliosis rather than to treat it. Correct posture, training in walking and sitting, as well as supervised gymnastic work, should be part of every child's education.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Jealousies Vanish as Christmas Melodies Are Sung

As Helena Brixton, with Philip Veritzen in tow, walked toward the staircase which leads from the basement to the first floor of the farmhouse, I looked furtively around to see if anyone save myself had heard her address him as "Prince Philip." To my great relief, no one was near me save the Tigers, and they were so engrossed in their work that I was sure they had not heard the surprisingly intimate little nickname, to be expected from the generation of Helena's daughter, to whom surnames are taboo, but decidedly odd from the lips of a well-bred woman as old as Helena Brixton, particularly after so slight an acquaintance as was hers with the famous man.

I was not so concerned with the nickname being audible as I was with the possibility of my stare of astonishment being noticed and misinterpreted. I was keenly aware that all my little world had noticed with humorous appraisal the conspicuous attention which Philip Veritzen had paid me, and that this exhibition of him at Helena's chariot wheels would add zestful tidbit to their thoughts, if not to their utterances. But I resolved so to school myself that I would not again betray the slightest astonishment at any speech or action of either of the two, and that I also would maneuver things so that it would look as if I were making opportunities for them to be together.

Tucking this determination away in the back of my mind, I threw myself into the fascinating business of getting the basement playroom ready to the last detail for the boys upon Christmas morning. It was so absorbing an occupation, to the rest as well as to me, that no one of us thought of the time until Mary came running down the stairs and breathlessly announced:

"It's only 20 minutes until Christmas morning, and Grandma says everybody must come upstairs right away for the carols."

We dropped everything and trooped upstairs carrying the volubly protesting, but secretly pleased, Tiger family with us. The collegians and schoolgirls were already grouped around the piano with Helena Brixton seated before the instrument, and they were singing one of the latest cinema theme ballads. Mrs. Brixton rose abruptly as I entered, almost upsetting Mr. Veritzen who was gallantly turning her music.

"I've just been keeping your place for you," she said with pretty, apparently confused apology. With a quick decisive little movement, I put my hands upon her shoulders and seated her again upon the piano bench.

"Please," I entreated. "I'm selfish but I want to watch and listen to these young people."

I half whispered the words, for I did not wish to embarrass the young guests of The Larches. I need not have feared, however. I do not think any one of them was paying the slightest attention to anyone outside their particular group.

But it was a group worth watching, worth listening to, when a moment later they swung into "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem." Trained in school and college choruses and by good fortune, without a single poor voice in the lot, the rest of us knew after the first line that we were in for a treat. They had been singing school songs and the latest jazz hits together from the first day of their arrival, and I guessed that they already had had a rehearsal of the carols at The Larches, so sure and true were they in the soprano, contralto, tenor and bass into which they had divided their voices.

After that first line or two, the rest of us only pretended to sing, gave ourselves up to the pleasure of listening to the fresh young voices of the Yale boys, the Whitney girls, and Mary and Noel, whom the youngsters had insistently included in all their good times.

Helena Brixton was a marvelous accompanist. I paid her that mental tribute and as for the second time of the Christmas Eve, the strains of the old carols floated through the farmhouse, "Bethlehem," "When Shepherds Watched Their Flocks By Night," "We Three Kings of Orient Are," "Holy Night," and the rest of them—I do not think there was one of us who failed to thrill to the beauty and the melody of those young faces and voices.

There were two faces, however which reflected additional emotions to those evoked by the music.

Lillian's eyes were tender but her face was working as she watched Ronald and Marion standing close to each other, their hands clasped, surreptitiously, as they patently thought, but plainly visible. For a horrified instant, I thought Lillian would not be able to keep back her tears.

Philip Veritzen's face was the other at which I shot a furtive glance. Unmindful, for the moment, of the music he had appointed himself to turn he was gazing steadfastly at his son. Was it my imagination, or was there softened yearning in that look?

Household Hints

Save the coffee cans with tight-fitting lids. They are splendid containers for cereals, lard, cookies, etc.

To improve the flavor of tea, thoroughly dry the peel of an orange or lemon and place it in the tea caddy; it gives domestic tea an imported flavor.

All flame showing outside a kettle of boiling liquid represents wasted gas. Turn down the gas until it does not show around the edge of the pan and you will get full benefit of the flame with no waste.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Nothing is gained by singeing the hair. Clipping is just as good. The idea that the hair "bleeds" is a lot of hooey. The advantage of singeing is the ability of the taper to catch all ends and lengths.

Between shampoos the hair can be cleaned with eau de cologne. Pick up the tresslocks, one by one, apply the eau de cologne with a bit of cotton and wipe dry with a towel. Pour some of the essence onto the scalp. The warmth of the alcohol stimulates the tissues rousing the blood streams to a state of activity.

Lanolin, cocoa butter and cocoanut oil are good massage agents for developing the bust. Apply with flattened palms, send the hand about in wide, sweeping circles. Be gentle; the glands are delicate, liable to injury.

Too strenuous, heroic brushing of the teeth will break down the delicate structure of the gums. This is especially the case when the wrong motion is used. Place the bristles close to the gums, be gentle there; brush as hard as you like when you come down toward the ends of the teeth. Don't fail to use a mouth wash; it is important.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

When you visit your physician for your periodic health examination, one of the very first things he asks you to do is to open your mouth wide, and to say "Ah." He is examining the delicate lining of your throat. "Ah!" There is not a man or woman who could even make this simple sound, if in the throat there were no Adam's Apple. For your Adam's Apple is your larynx—the voice box containing your vocal chords. And what a delicate piece of Nature's handiwork the Adam's Apple is. A slight cold—even a tiny particle lodged in the throat—and our voice often grows husky. In acute cases, we may even lose our voice for several days. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants—Reach for a LUCKY instead—remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder 20,679 American physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating. LUCKIES are always kind to your throat. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

Father-Son Turf Rivals.

LIGHTER BAT RESTORES LOST STRIDE

ONE OF THE big guns on the Pirate brig is belching basehits again after a spell of unusual silence. Paul Waner was held in subjection for a time, but he now looks to be fairly launched on another of his yearly campaigns to make life a burden to opposing pitchers. The Oklahoma larruper believes he has found a way to offset the increase in effectiveness which the changed ball made possible for the National League hurlers, and the big jump his swatting average has taken of late offers a lot of evidence in support of that belief.

Paul Waner

Paul's advice to any other hitter who has been slowed down by the different ball and the altered hurling conditions this spring is to go out and get a lighter bat. Like most other major league batsmen, the elder Waner reduced the weight of his club quite a while back, but when the sticks failed to cope with the 1931 situation he decided to try another drastic change. So he discarded his 39-ounce bats and started swinging a new set that average only 36 ounces.

THE ANSWER IS to be found in Paul's changed batting mark. Up to the final game of the St. Louis series last week he was hitting only .275, not even faintly suggestive of his normal stride. Runs that he had formerly driven in with regularity were being left stranded on the bases. But today his average was .313, even though he had gone hitless in the Bucs' latest game.

In his last five games up to today, the senior half of the Pirate brother act thumped the old agate for the husky average of .579. In 19 times at bat he made 11 hits, and his blows included a home run, two triples and a double. Bob Smith, of the Cubs, was the only chucker to stop him during that stretch, and teammates were predicting today that he will continue his drive until he lands among the leading batters of the National League.

LLOYD WANER also has been spanking the ball at a lively rate during recent weeks, helped largely by a great improvement in health as compared with last season. Stepping on the scales a few days ago, Lloyd tipped the beam at 145 pounds, which he says is the highest figure he has reached in four years.

The Waners are so close to being on even terms that only one point separates them. Lloyd being in front with .314. Up to today neither of the brothers had been held hitless two games in succession since the opening of the season. In 39 games Lloyd had failed to bat safely in only eight and Paul in only nine.

THE ACTION OF Manager Ens in benching Gus Suhr and making a place for Fred Bennett in the outfield by moving Paul Waner to first base was more than warranted by existing conditions and the urgent need for bolstering the Pirate attack. Batting only .189 for the season, Suhr went through five straight games up to last Sunday without a hit, and has failed to register a safe blow in 10 of his last 13 contests. Bennett may not provide the needed increase in hitting power, but he surely cannot make the attack any weaker, and the experiment is well worth a chance until the club in general shows signs of finding itself.

Leo Mackey

AS HE DID in all his previous engagements as a pilot, Leo Mackey, Crafton citizen, has demonstrated rare managerial ability since he took hold of the Cumberland club in the Middle-Atlantic League. He has his team in first place and clicking in all departments.

The popularity of the kind of ball Mackey has produced is attested by the fact that the game is going over in bigger style in Cumberland this year than in any season since the Middle-Atlantic League was started in 1925. The policy introduced by Mackey is the explanation. In past years Cumberland had a flock of veterans who had seen their best days, but Mackey has surrounded himself with a lot of up and coming youngsters who are full of ambition and hustle.

THE CRAFTON MAN has under his wing some of the best young pitchers seen in Cumberland in years. A standout is Lefty Tamulis, not yet 19, a southpaw from Boston, who equaled the league strikeout record recently when he fanned 13 Huntington batters in a nine-inning game.

Most of the Huntington wand wielders were swinging at the ball when it was in Mackey's glove behind the bat. It was one of the best exhibitions of pitching ever seen by Cumberland veterans. Tamulis is a Lithuanian and attracted wide attention as a scholastic star at South Boston High School, from which he was graduated in 1930.

IN CONTINUING TO wax fat on their favorite prey, the poor old Reds, whom they defeated 24 times in 26 games since last June 1, the Cardinals yesterday lived up to their reputation as the extra-inning champions of the year. The 12-inning tussle with the Howleys was the fifth overtime combat of the season for the Missourians, and they have won out every time. They have defeated the Reds twice in 10 and 12 innings, the Cubs twice in 10 and 11 frames and the Pirates once in 13 rounds.

JIM JEFFRIES, who has taken up refereeing again on the Pacific Coast for the first time since 1908, when he handled the battle in which Billy Papke knocked out Stanley Ketchel for the middleweight title, can't see modern fighters for a minute.

"They don't train right and they don't fight right," says the former heavyweight champion. "Al Morro, the heavyweight I tried to develop recently, is an example. He thought he knew more than I did, so I turned him adrift. In his first New York fight he was stopped in two rounds by Steve Hamas."

WITH THE RESULT anxiously awaited in all parts of the world by holders of tickets in sweepstakes totaling $13,000,000, the famous English Derby will have its one hundred and fifty-second running at Epsom Downs tomorrow at about 10 a. m. Pittsburgh time.

Dan Froggates, Sr.

Lord Dewar's Cameronian, trained by Fred Darling, who has trained three Derby winners, and to be ridden by Fred Fox, rules favorite in the betting. That has been a jinx to many horses in the past, as Sansovino in 1924 and Call Boy in 1927 were the only favorites to win the Derby in the last 11 years. Steve Donoghue, who has ridden six Derby winners, is figured to have a chance for a seventh on Link Boy. The outlook for William Woodward's American horse, Sir Andrew, is not considered bright, but the Derby is a gamble in which anything may happen.

THE PRESENT RACE meeting at the Bainbridge track in Cleveland has one of the most unusual angles to feature an American turf program in many years. Father and son are fighting it out as rival jockeys. They are the Froggates, Dan Sr. and Dan Jr., and in competing against each other daily they are putting on many a thrilling riding duel. Only one similar father-and-son jockey story is recalled by the old guard of racegoers, and that dates back to the time of the two Haywoods, who used to have it out hot and heavy at Sheepshead Bay some 35 years ago. Pittsburgh contributed another instance of family saddle rivalry in the old days, when the two Hughes brothers, of this city, ranked among the leading jockeys of the country.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE AISSAOUAS OF KAIRUAN—The Aissaouas constitute a great religius brothership named after Sidi Mohammed ben Aissa, their founder. They maintain sanctuaries throughout North Africa, and their practices are even more remarkable than those of their coreligionists, the Hamadschas. In the zaouia of Kairouan, the holiest city of Tunis, I have seen them perform a series of incredible self-mutilations with sharp instruments, with apparent complete imperviousness to pain. Plunging long, wicked-looking knives and sabers into different parts of their anatomy and walking barefooted upon live coals are features of this bizarre religious performance. I think religious frenzy is acting as an anesthetic in these practices. A TOY BALLOON STAMPEDED A HERD OF CATTLE—On December 3, 1930, a chemistry class in Fairfax, Ala., filled a toy balloon with hydrogen gas and released it with a note asking the finder to communicate with the school. On December 21, 1930, the balloon descended near San Gabriel, Tex., into a herd of 2,000 cattle, stampeding them and killing 163 of the number. "THE CAT'S ELBOW"—The castle of Katzenelbogen, on the Rhine, was erected by the famous counts of that name in 1393. There is a town of the same name nearby, in the district of Weisbaden. The name Katzenelbogen in literal translation means "The Cat's Elbow". The name actually is an adaptation to German pronunciation of the Latin word "Cattimelibocus," pointing to the Germanic tribe of the Katten, who took part in the battle in he Teutoburg Forest, when the Roman domination over Germany ended.

Herron Pulling For Mentor, Mac Smith

S. Davidson Herron, National amateur champion of 1919, a member of the Oakmont Country Club here, is one local golfer pulling strong for Macdonald Smith, leading the fight for Bobby Jones' British open championship laurels, to win at Carnoustie, Scotland, this week. Smith was Herron's golf teacher at Oakmont 15 years ago when Mac was pro at the Hulton layout. He taught Davey how to hit with every club, and especially with the irons, for Smith is one of the greatest iron strokers in the game. After instructing Herron for a time, Smith predicted he would win the National crown—which he did.

Tabor School Crew To Race Abroad

BOSTON, June 2.—(AP.)—The eight-oared crew of Tabor Academy, of Marion, Mass., will sail for England on or about June 13 to complete in the Royal Henley regatta, it has been announced by Huston Lillard, headmaster of the Buzzards Bay school.

SCHNEIDER'S VICTORY O.K.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 2.—(AP.)—The standing of the leaders in the 500-mile automobile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway will remain unchanged, the contest board of the American Automobile Association announced late yesterday in disallowing protests filed by Harry Hartz, Los Angeles, and by Louis Meyer, Southgate, Cal.

The action of the contest board was announced after a thorough investigation and rechecking of the records of the timers.

Hartz had contended Fred Frame, also of Los Angeles, driver of a car entered by Hartz, should have been declared winner instead of Louis Schneider, Indianapolis. Speedway officials said the records showed Schneider finished 59 seconds ahead of Frame.

Meyer, who finished in Myron Stevens' racer, claimed he had gained third place instead of Ralph Hepburn, of Los Angeles. The official timers' records placed him 16 seconds behind Hepburn.

One protest was allowed. It was that of Phil (Red) Shafer, Des Moines, Ia., against the race officials' action in flagging him to the pits for conference after a complaint that he passed a competitor in violation of rules when the drivers were slowed down during a rain that interrupted the race.

W. D. Edeburn, chief steward of the contest board, ordered the four-and-a-half minutes Shafer spent in the pits subtracted from his time for the 500 miles. This gave Shafer twelfth place, and shoved into thirteenth position Dave Evans, of Evansville, Ind., driver of the Cummins oil-burning racer.

AQUATIC STAR CUT IN ROW

CARMEL, N. Y., June 2.—(AP.)—Joe Farley, 25, New York Athletic Club star swimmer, was stabbed several times and seriously injured during a free-for-all fight in a dance pavilion Sunday, it was made known here. Two men charged with attacking Farley are held for the grand jury on assault charges.

Ray Ruddy, American swimming champion, also was involved.

Several men came into the dance pavilion at Lake Oscawana, nine miles north of Peekskill, and a fight started. Farley, who is a boxer as well as a swimmer, felled three of his assailants before he dropped to the floor with deep knife wounds in the back, chest and over the eyes. Ruddy was not injured.

Chicago Starts Hemsley With Pay Raise

Rolly Hemsley, youthful catcher who last week was traded by the Pirates to the Cubs for Catcher Earl Grace and a sum of money, was given a $2,500 advance in pay, it was revealed today. The Chicago management was anxious to encourage Hemsley to mend his ways and used this method to get him started aright.

Hemsley recently was A. W. O. L. from the Pittsburgh club. He was suspended without pay, but later was reinstated. Rolly also owed some money to the Pittsburgh Club, and this was taken care of by the Cub management.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Somewhat refreshed by a day of relaxation and looking forward to two weeks on the old home grounds, the Pirates this morning were in a better mood to meet the advance of the peppery Braves of Boston, who came to town yesterday with the idea of adding to the Buccaneer woes.

The first battle postponed on account of cold weather, the two teams are anxious to clash today. If Bill McKechnie uses Eddie Brandt or any other southpaw on the slab, Boss Ens, of the Buccos, will make an important change in his lineup. Ens announced last night he would bench Gus Suhr and get Outfielder Fred Bennett into action in the outfield, provided a lefthander operates against the Freebooters. Paul Waner would come in to play the gateway post under this arrangement.

BRANDT TO HURL

The change in all probability will go through as Brandt, owner of eight unbroken victories, is due to hurl for the Tribe. Ens is considerably het up over the slump of his regular firstbaseman and he will try to help Gus by keeping him in the background when the southpaws heckle the Buccos. Bennett is a sturdy righthand batter who may be just what the doctor ordered. Remy Kremer is the home team's slab choice.

Boss Ens and his charges, in seventh place, are glad to know their travels are over for two weeks, yet they present a paradox in that they play their best ball on the road and away from the jeers of the home fans. On their recent long invasion they overcame a lot of obstacles like Dazzy Vance, Ray Phelps, Clarence Mitchell, Pat Malone and Flint Rhem, but as soon as they reached the Oakland Orchard they proceeded to fall into a pathetic slump, the Cubs trimming the Freebooters four games in a row, counting the Sunday contest in Chicago.

The low estate of the Pirates has caused thousands of fans to hum with chatter, the general tenor of which seeks an answer for the troublesome condition. Yet it doesn't take much time to reach the sore spot, which is nothing else but the infield.

PIE IN SLUMP

Even Pie Traynor, who has been the envy of every pilot in the two major leagues, fell into a slump with the others of the first defense. But Pie is a sure bet to get into his characteristic stride which for nine years had made him the peer; he is too young and spirited to do any slipping stuff.

Over on the other corner, however, there is a young, strong athlete who through the spring training period gave promise of having a fine season. Gus Suhr can hit a ball about as hard and as far as any batter in the National League, but the unfortunate lad from the Coast has fallen down with a bang on many big occasions at the plate. His diversion from the path that leads to hitting glory is one of the sad features of the play of the club and one of the reasons why the team is in such a unenviable spot.

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, June 2.—It took two years for the Cincinnati Reds to beat the Cards in their home park. This shows patience will accomplish anything. If the Cincies keep on plugging, they may even get up to seventh place by Christmas, but I am not mentioning what year. The Reds are getting along so rotten this season that when you draw them in a baseball pool it is equivalent to a blank. Well, the team that is in first place on the Fourth of July generally wins the pennant. Griff threatens if we don't push out the A's by then we will have to spend the winter in Valley Forge, and that ain't Rudy's roadhouse.

For the second time during the school wear, Schenley and South Hills high schools clash for a City League championship. The rivals inaugurate the annual series for the league baseball title at Forbes Field this evening, beginning at 6 o'clock, Schenley defending its title won last year and representing Section I and South Hills carrying the colors of Section II.

The schools also met for the basketball title, Schenley winning, and South Hills lost to Westinghouse in the playoff for the gridiron gonfalon.

The second game of the series will be played Friday, also at the home of the Pirates, and the third game, if necessary, next Tuesday.

Earl Stratton, Schenley's mound ace, and Bill Lentz, hurling star of the Tunnelites, are primed to oppose each other in the opening tussle today. Lentz pitched and won five games during the regular league schedule. Stratton did almost as well for Schenley.

Two hard-hitting lads will swing in the cleanup positions, with Friedman in the fourth notch for the Bellefielders and the veteran Regan in the same spot for South Hills. Regan is classed with the best of the younger sandlot players in the district, and played a whale of a game last year for the Collier Colts.

Schenley rules a slight favorite to retain its league title, with the series expected to go the full three games.

JOHNNIES WIN DOUBLE BILL

The Johnstown Johnnies edged up a bit closer to the leaders in the Middle Atlantic League yesterday and shoved Fairmont back into a tie for third place by defeating the Black Diamonds in both ends of a doubleheader, 4 to 3 and 11 to 6. Cousins limited the Johnnies to seven hits in the first game, while the Diamonds secured 15, but lost out.

At Wheeling, the Stogies defeated Altoona, 11 to 2, putting a stop to the three-game winning string of the Railroaders. Chismar limited Altoona to four safe hits.

Charleston's Senators defeated Clarksburg, 7 to 6, seven errors, five by Clarksburg and two by Charleston, being made.

Huntington took advantage of eight hits off three Beckley pitchers to score an 8-to-4 victory. Brown gave up seven blows, but kept them scattered.

Hagerstown and Scottdale were to have played a doubleheader, but rain kept the teams idle.

GALIDO VICTOR IN TOURNEY

Mike Galido, a member of last year's public links team, won the low gross honors yesterday as the Philadelphia Company employees staged their annual tournament at the Stanton Heights Golf Club. Galido turned in a card of 45-37—82. Charles Dunn was second with 45-38—83 and Bill Pfeger third with 41-46—87.

The kickers' handicap was won by E. J. Dovey. Pfeger also won the award for the least number of putts, using only 31. The following won low net prizes for each foursome: T. E. Purcell, 78; G. W. Ousler, 74; B. M. Jones, 74; J. D. Roth, 80; L. Phillips, 81; A. G. Butler, 73; M. E. Werner, 83; F. F. Brown, 79; J. L. Alexander, 74; E. J. Dovey, 79, and E. W. Judy, 81.

ROSS THROUGH AT WESLEYAN

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., June 2. — (AP.) — The resignation of Kelcel M. Ross, director of athletics at West Virginia Wesleyan College here, was announced last night at the annual alumni banquet.

Ross came to West Virginia Wesleyan in 1927 as athletic director and head of the department of physical education. He had served as assistant coach at West Virginia University for three years, and prior to that had been coach at Wheeling and Buckhannon high schools.

In announcing that Ross' resignation had been accepted, the Wesleyan trustees let it be known that his position would be consolidated with that of another faculty post.

Several days ago Ross said that he would resign if a proposal to curtail the school's intercollegiate athletic schedule was adopted.

Len Harvey Stops DeVos In London

Between Rounds

The real name of Patsy Pirrone, the Canton, O., light-heavyweight, is Patsy Payona. He changed it to Patsy Perroni when he began to box and now has altered it to Pirrone, which makes two Pirrones in the ring, the other one being Paul, of Cleveland.

A team of amateur boxers from the Pittsburgh Lyceum will box in the Gallatin Gardens, Uniontown, tomorrow night.

The opening outdoor wrestling show, planned for the Meyers Bowl Friday night, has been set back one week while the managers of Gus Sonnenberg, one of the headliners, will try to have him reinstated in this state.

K. O. Clemmons, of Cleveland, boxes Tony Galento, of Newark, N. J., in Detroit Friday night. Midget Mike O'Dowd meets Johnny Mincelli in another 10-rounder.

Bryan Downey, one-time claimant of the middleweight title, will try a comeback in an eight-round preliminary to the Jackie Fields-Relampago Saguero fight in Chicago Thursday night. His opponent will be Matty Matthews, of Chicago.

Buck McTiernan, local middleweight star, and his manager, Bunny Buntack, are scheduled to leave tonight for New York, which Buck meets Ignacio Ara in a 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

The Frankie Genaro-Jimmy Thomas bout at Hickey Park has been closed for Thursday night of next week.

JESS HARPER VISITS CITY

A cheery smile upon his face and full of pep and business, Jess Harper, successor to the late Knute Rockne as athletic director at Notre Dame, stepped off the train from Philadelphia in the Pennsylvania Station at 9:15 this morning, to be greeted by W. Don Harrison, director of athletics at the University of Pittsburgh, who immediately took him in tow for a trip to the Pitt Stadium. They discussed possibilities for future contests between the two schools in football, basketball and golf.

After visiting with Harrison at Pitt, Harper was scheduled for a conference with Clarence (Buddy) Overend, graduate manager of athletics at Carnegie Tech, this afternoon, after which he will entrain to continue his journey back to South Bend, Ind.

PRAISES ANDERSON

Harper had high praise for Hunk Anderson, the man upon whom falls the coaching burden of the Fighting Irish this fall.

"I am delighted to have Anderson in there as coach," Harper said, "for he knows football and teaches it as well as any man. The boys think the world of him and I think he'll be a great success.

"I have the finest co-operation from the school and athletic staff, alumni and faculty any man could ask for; it is very delightful.

"We have a distinct advantage at Notre Dame in football, of course. We have 700 boys playing the game every fall.

DETAILS SYSTEM

"Each hall has its own squad of 30 or 35 men, and they play their own inter-hall schedules. All equipment is provided by the Notre Dame Athletic Association. In this way, boys who do not have the confidence to come out for the freshman team, or who are not good enough to make the grade on the freshman team get to play regularly.

"You'd be surprised at the number of good varsity players we get from this intra-mural competition. We had 350 men out for spring training, whereas the average school is fortunate to get 100.

"I feel that we will continue to have real success in football."

PLAN FUTURE EVENTS

Harper was coach of Rockne when Knute began his grid career. Pitt and Notre Dame are booked for football games next fall, and today's confab is expected to further future relations.

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., June 2.—(AP.)—Twenty-seven holes of golf, motorboating, fishing and a motion picture show at nearby Meadville in the evening was Max Schmeling's routine today.

The heavyweight boxer, training for his fight at Cleveland next month with W. L. (Young) Stribling, gave his three sparring partners a rest, but will engage them in action again today.

PIRRONE BOWS TO COURTNEY AT BOWL

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

George Courtney, a few years ago a leading middleweight contender, who has slipped considerably both as a boxer and as a puncher, still retains enough of his form to beat a fairly good fighter. He demonstrated this last night before a small, chilled crowd in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, when he won the judges' decision over Patsy Pirrone, of Canton, O., while the referee voted the bout a draw.

Courtney, a stablemate of Mickey Walker, the middleweight champion, under the management of Jack Kearns and Teddy Hayes, and seconded by the latter, was too cagy and too smooth-working a boxer for the 19-year-old Pirrone, who was engaging in only his second bout following a layoff since last December, when he underwent an operation.

PATSY TAKES LEAD

Pirrone started off doing the leading and won the first two rounds, although he began to bleed from the nose in the second. The third round went to Courtney on his cleaner punching, which put Patsy's left eye in distress. Courtney also won the next two rounds and dropped the sixth when Pirrone flashed a furious rally against the ropes. Courtney did the sharper hitting in the next two rounds and was at his best in the eighth, during which Pirrone slipped to the floor trying to avoid punishment.

Pirrone did his best work in the ninth round, in which he hurt Courtney with a right to the jaw and swung the latter down for no count as he sought a clinch. Coutrney felt the effects until the bell and Patsy continued the aggressor.

COURTNEY HOLDS FORM

The tables were turned in the final round, in which Courtney punched out a clear margin. Midway, Pirrone went down momentarily from a body punch and came up claiming foul.

Pirrone, who had a nine-pound edge in the weights, scaling 176 against 167, was guilty of a lot of clinching and frequently turned his back to his opponent in the embraces, while Courtney never lost his form and fought as well on the inside as at long range.

Harold Scarney, of Youngstown, 182¾, had his work cut out beating Johnny Mack, short, stocky Cincinnatian, carrying much of his 194¾ pounds around the waistline in the Willie Meehan manner. Mack not only was tough, but also willing, and he clowned enough to make his opponent look bad in winning. He gave the crowd many a laugh.

ANOTHER FOR GORNICK

Marty Gornick, of Whitaker, 141¼, who looks better every time out, easily defeated Benny McArthur, of McKeesport, 139, in the six-round second bout. He hit too hard with both hands. He buckled Benny's knees with rights twice in the first round, dropped him for a count of seven with a left hook in the third and staggered him with a right and followed with a left for a knockdown for a count of two in the fifth.

Billy Holt, Homewood Negro, 142¾, punched around Tait Langford, Akron veteran, 146, in the opener, dropping him for a count of one in the first round and for nine in the second, but couldn't score a knockout that always seemed imminent.

Al Grayber refereed the main and second bouts and Jack Henderson the other two, Jock Simco and Frank Ferris were the judges, A. C. Couch and Tommy Grant the timers, Dr. M. R. Goldman the commission physician and Ray Eberle the announcer.

BETTING ODDS STILL FAVOR CAMERONIAN

Linkboy, Steve Donoghue's mount in the Derby, was scratched today, leaving the famous English jockey without a horse and reducing the field to 27. If the rain continues it is probable others will be scratched.

The weather even may keep King George from attending the Derby, although it was said today that if it was at all possible he and the Prince of Wales would be in the royal box at post time.

WOMEN GOLFERS BATTLE FOR TEAM HONORS

LEAGUE TILTS HEADLINE DAY'S CARD

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The Shannopin and Westmoreland country clubs are colorful scenes today as the various women stars of Sections I and II of the Team League of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania got together for their weekly match.

Playing began at 10:30 this morning, and early contesting indicated keen matches.

Capt. Anjeanette Hunter, of Oakmont, saw to it at the Shannopin Country Club, that Allegheny and Stanton Heights, Shannopin and the Pittsburgh Field Club, and Edgewood and Fox Chapel got away to a start, although her own team is idle this week. Section II's captain, Mrs. Hugh C. Anderson, was at the starting desk at Westmoreland as Westmoreland played Butler. Country Club of Pittsburgh opposed Longue Vue, and Alcoma met St. Clair.

SCHOOL TEAMS MEET

If the proteges of John Irwin at Taylor Allderice can defeat Capt. Palmer's Shady Side Academy team today in their Section I Interscholastic Golf Conference match, a deadlock will ensue for the runner-up honors in that group. If such is the case an extra match will be played to determine which team must meet the loser of the Kiski-McKeesport championship contest for the right to claim second place in the conference race. The championship will be played at the Alcoma Country Club Thursday, beginning at 2 o'clock.

TOMORROW'S CARD

Three women's tournaments are on the books for tomorrow. A flag tourney, under full handicap, is slated for the Alcoma Country Club; two-ball foursomes will be played at Chartiers Heights, and medal play, under full handicap, will be staged at Valley Heights.

The Maryland seniors' championship also begins tomorrow. A big one-day tourney for women is carded at Edgewood on Friday, while the Carnegie Steelmen play at Wildwood on the same day.

The Wochengo's inaugurated competition over the Schenley Park links yesterday, with Edith Clarke taking top honors with a card of 89-15—74. Mrs. Margaret Curry, city champion, was second with 85-9—76.

plate and in a defensive stride that has been lamentable. George Grantham has often been a feared hitter, especially in the early months of the race, but this year his stick has gone out on strike as if in sympathy with his fielding.

The shortstop condition seems to have started much of the trouble. Many figured that Tommy Thevenow, a surer defensive player than Dick Bartell, would steady the general play of the club if he batted up to his mediocre standard, but Tommy went into a dreadful slump at the plate. Ens eventually was forced to lift him in favor of Ben Sankey, who is doing a nervy job despite his inexperience. But the whole infield had been in an upheaval due to the bush-league fielding and the lack of hitting power.

Perhaps the worm will turn. The Pirate sick and injured appear to be on the mend. Ervin Brame in defeat Saturday afternoon was a sweet pitcher and Remy Kremer's last appearance saw him in shutout form against the Cubs, he losing through the sieve-like actions of the infield.

MANN, WAGNER CONFER HERE

Plans for the Pennsylvania state amateur baseball championship tournament were begun when National Director Leslie Mann arrived in town yesterday for a confab with Commissioner Honus Wagner.

Mann has been in West Virginia, and has laid tentative plans for the Pittsburgh champions to play a series of games with the West Virginia winner. Two night games probably will be played at Huntington.

Mann is very enthusiastic regarding the newly-formed amateur body. The association meets with Judge Landis June 15, in Chicago, and a nationwide program will be instituted after that session.

Mann goes from here to Philadelphia to complete arrangements for the playing of the state championship tournament, details of which will be given out in a few days.

With most all of the colleges in the West and South joining the new movement, there will be an effort made to form a college baseball body all over the country, and when that is completed, the boosting of baseball in the high schools will be started.

Mann has many plans for the benefit of amateur baseball which will help the game. The conference with Wagner was very productive. Mann, as national director, was much impressed with the work accomplished by Honus in this district.

Homewood Signs Henderson Battery

Manager Hank Daly, of the Homewood club of the City League, announced today that he has signed Bob and Jimmy Henderson.

Bob is a pitcher who should go good in the City League circles. Jimmy has the reputation of being the best young catcher in the district. Last season he played with Jack Fertig's Homestead Aces, but this season joined Verona.

Daly also announced he has released Tom Gettings, a pitcher from Verona, who signed a few days ago.

TUT IN 20-ROUNDER

MILWAUKEE, June 2.—(AP.)—Ernie Fliegel, manager of King Tut, Minneapolis boxer, said today he had accepted the terms of Len Sachs, business manager for Jack Dempsey, for a 20-round fight at Reno, Nev., in September, between Tut and Young Corbett.

EVERS ELECTED

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Johnny Evers, Jr., son of the former National League star, has been elected captain of the Georgetown University baseball team.

COLUMBUS, June 2.—(AP.)—Wesley Fesler, Ohio State University's all-America football player, has signed a one-year contract with the Columbus American Association Baseball Club.

Larry MacPhail, president of the club, said Fesler would join the team when it returns from its present road trip next Monday. The salary was not announced.

Fesler, a star in basketball and other sports as well as football, graduates from Ohio State next week.

The North Side Buick-Homewood City League battle will hold the interest of the fans this evening as the outstanding game in sandlot warfare. The score is all even at the present time between the clubs, Johnny Dunsky's team nosed out the Daly club, with Luntz on the mound, in the opening game of the season.

The second game, at Homewood, found the East Enders getting revenge, so tonight's battle is wide open. It is likely that Quigley will oppose Dubuque on the slab, so the fans will see a pitchers' battle

BUICKS SIGN JONES

Doc Jones, crack semi-pro spitball pitcher, has been signed by Manager Dunsky for the Buicks, and will finish the season with that club. Dormont and other clubs also sought the services of Jones. He was with the Book Shoe club last year, but during the present season until now he has been unattached.

One other game will be staged in the league, the J. L. Thomas team meeting the North Side Civics at the Salt Works.

Reliance Life gets its real fight of the season this evening as it hooks up with the Homestead Grays at Langley Field. Reliance has been setting down all opposition, but beating the Grays is something else.

SWISSVALE STRONG

One game will be flashed in the West Penn League. Swissvale goes to Turtle Creek to try to avenge the opening night defeat. Swissvale has been playing bang-up baseball of late, but beating Dutch Winters' outfit at the Union High School Stadium is a tough job.

One game will be played in the Commercial and Industrial loop this evening. Frank Rush will take his B. & O. aggregation to Library to meet the Pittsburgh Coal nine.

PIRRONE VICTOR

CLEVELAND, June 2.—(AP.)—Paul Pirrone, Cleveland welterweight, was given an unpopular dicision over Larry Madge, fellow townsman, in an eight-round bout here last night. Pirrone weighed 149¾ pounds; Madge 149.

WASHINGTON PARK MUTUELS

GRAYS, LIFERS MEET DEFEATS

Two winning streaks came upon evil times last evening as the district sandlot nines played through a heavy schedule, despite the chill weather. Both the Homestead Grays and the Reliance Life nines were defeated, which is something out of the ordinary.

The Lifers dropped a West Penn League tussle to Swissvale, 7 to 6, for their first setback of the season. The Grays were the victims of some fine hurling on the part of Carl Stewart, and lost to Homewood, 6 to 4. Oddly enough, the Grays and Insurance lads clash tonight so that barring a tie, one or the other is due to lose two in a row, an unusual situation for either.

In the City League, Book Shoe defeated J. L. Thomas with ease, 12 to 2. In the Crafton-Ingram Church League, the Methodists upset Ingram, 7 to 4.

Oakland Pro Lands 156-Yard Ace-Holer

CONNEAUT LAKE, June 2.—Bill O'Donnell, pro at the Oakland Beach golf course, jumped on the hole-in-one band wagon yesterday, when his No. 4 iron shot took a non-stop flight to No. 8 green and dropped from sight into the hole, a distance of 156 yards.

Eventually there was separation and divorce.

Tessie Adopted

Tessie's father-in-law, old Samuel F. Nixon, was a great admirer of the actress. After her divorce he adopted her. Indeed, in the will he made in October, 1918, exactly one month before it was probated, he stated that he had adopted Tessie and wrote:

"It is my will and intention, and I direct, that she shall receive and enjoy all the bequests herein contained and the shares of interests this will and my estate gave her subject to the limitations and terms of such bequests, shares or interests, whether such adoption is legal or not, sufficient or not, reversed or not."

I state this to show just how Fred's father thought about him and his first marriage. That estate of old Samuel Nixon's, by the way, was worth about $2,000,000. Of this, 29 per cent of the net income was given to Fred. This share now reverts, since Fred's death, to his two sons.

One thing I may say, I never interfered with or questioned my husband's financial affairs. I knew, for instance, that although he carried 26 insurance policies my name was not mentioned in one of them. I was satisfied that my two children were named as beneficiaries of a $25,000 policy. What seems strange is that several of the policies provides for Fred's second wife, Lura McKenna.

Mystery Wife

All that I know about her is that she and Fred were married in 1912. She was, I understand, a pretty woman. She was interested in war work during the few years before 1918. I understand, in fact, she joined the most exclusive organizations of war workers and proudly wore the uniform adopted by this group.

Whether Fred retained an affectionate interest in her and a sentimental regard for her as some of the newspapers said—I do not know. At least, I never thought so. Of course, rumors of their marriage were bandied about and were, if I may say so, quite silly.

After I had learned all about my husband's past, and the fact that he still was married to Lura, I decided there was nothing for me to do but to leave Fred. Naturally I was unhappy and unsatisfied. My status as a wife was uncertain. Finally Lura got a divorce in Paris (that was in June, 1925). Even then I was not satisfied.

I do not feel it necessary for me to comment on the reports in the newspapers that we divorced each other because the marriage was not exactly legal. However, we did marry again, particularly in view of the fact that I still loved Fred and he seemed to be in love with me.

New Quarrels

And then the old domestic quarrels and scenes began anew. They increased in number and violence. My husband, although never intoxicated, became very excited after drinking at times. I was not allowed to make any friends. As soon as I tried, my husband would insult them, or make it so unpleasant for me, I had to drop them. We traveled in every country in Europe, meeting and seeing the best of life—only to have it all spoiled by Fred's unreasonable attitude. There was Egypt, with its old glories, and Palestine, the divine city—but there also was Fred.

Indeed, I might merely refer to the statement made to the investigating magistrate here in Nice not long ago by Sydney Chaplin, the film star and brother of Charlie Chaplin. I met Mr. and Mrs. Chaplin at Cannes two years ago, and since then they and Fred and I were good friends. Here is what Mr. Chaplin said when he kindly came to my defense:

"I never saw Mrs. Nirdlinger flirting with anyone. She only talked of her children and told stories of which they were heroes. My wife and I soon saw, however, that her husband was a domestic tyrant. Every day he would search through the papers of his wife and governess in hope of finding a love letter."

He never found one, of course. But he was to find something else: that I had determined to take steps to end what had become a hateful and impossible situation.

McKeesport Tin Large Report Profit Expected

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE MAINTENANCE OF THE demand for tin plate at the highest level enjoyed by any steel product indicates that the prospects for the McKeesport Tin Plate Company for the present year are exceptionally bright.

Business of the leading makers of tin cans has been only slightly less this year than in the early part of last year. Planting of vegetables for canning purposes is fully equal to a year ago. If the weather is favorable for the growing of fruits and vegetables in the principal producing areas, both the can companies and the makers of tin plate will enjoy a volume of business nearly equal to 1930, which was one of the best years in the history of the industry.

The production of tin plate has been slightly below a year ago, but it is still the strongest point in the steel industry. Price cutting which has been prevalent on almost every other steel product has been avoided in marketing tin plate. A reduction of 25 cents a box for tin plate announced late in 1930 was in line with lower prices for both pig tin and semi-finished steel, the two principal raw materials.

Extra Dividends Declared

IN 1930 WHEN THE DIVIDEND rates of many corporations were becoming doubtful, the McKeesport Tin Plate Company started declaring quarterly extras of 50 cents a share in addition to regular quarterly dividends of $1. These regular and extra payments have been continued up to the present time so that the stock may be considered to be on a $6 annual basis.

The fact that the demand for tin plate reflects general business conditions to only a moderate extent, indicates that the company will have little difficulty in continuing to pay extra dividends. Demand for tin plate is principally dependent on the volume of foods available for canning rather than on factors in other industries. Each year new products are being added to the list of foods packed in tin cans. This results in an average gain of about 10 per cent in the use of tin plate each year.

Profits Gain

IN 1930 THE M'KEESPORT Tin Plate Company earned $2,503,897 or $8.34 a share on its 300,000 shares of capital stock. This compared with $2,402,200 or $8.01 in 1929 and with $1,587,919 or 5.29 a share in 1928.

The company has no preferred stock or funded debt. It is in an excellent financial position. At the close of 1930 current assets of $4,988,726 were five times current liabilities. Cash amounted to $1,924,503, which was twice all current liabilities of $985,029.

It is too early to attempt a prediction of earnings for the first half of 1931. It seems quite probable, however, that they will not be far behind the corresponding period of 1930 when net profit was $1,513,850 or $5.05 a share. In the first half of 1929 net profit was $1,084,562 or $3.61 a share.

In addition to operating one of the largest single plants for rolling black plate and coating it with tin, the company has a substantial interest in the Metal Package Corporation, which manufactures cans. Late in 1930 it bought the Fischer Can Company at Hamilton, O.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Earnings of Drug, Inc., in the first quarter were in excess of the like period of last year. Although no reports are issued quarterly, April business and that of May has been good and the corporation's chances of exceeding the first six months of last year are bright. With prospective earnings for the first half of the current year in excess of $3 a share the period's dividend will be covered with a margin of better than 50 per cent.

"All of the bear predictions of last year and the year before have been realized. The sellers of yesterday and the day before are the careful buyers of today. Important buying is making its appearance, and there is apparently no important selling. Yields are now liberal on railroads, industrials and utilities. Even with the 'blue chips' there is a wide spread between yield and money rates. Sentiment is as blue now as it was rosy two years ago and it is largely pessimism which is now causing liquidation. The logic of the facts points to the market having as definitely entered a long-pull buying area as it had moved into a zone of selling in the summer of 1929," says "The Trader" in Barron's Weekly.

Each fresh decline in values seemingly sets in motion a new wave of liquidation judging by the action of the list. Moreover each occasion on which the market rallies for a day and then fails to carry through simply intensifies the feeling of discouragement which has taken hold of security owners. There is no gainsaying the fact that the nimble bear trader is taking advantage of the opportunity afforded for quick profits much as he might be expected to do. But liquidation is providing the bulk of the selling as it has for weeks on end. Where it is coming from is not generally known, but judging by the character of the stocks on which it has been converging most observers are of the opinion that some important holders of various stocks have been embarrassed in some measure and forced to raise cash through the sale of securities.

The vulnerability of the so-called "blue chip" stocks has been subject to much comment in the past few weeks. Various explanations have been heard for this condition. One is that because of the comparatively high selling prices for these stocks they have become popular with the bear traders for attacks. Another is that liquidation by investment trusts and others that has been consistent and largest in these stocks which were so popular with the bulls during the period of advancing prices nearly two years ago.

Despite the fact that the action had been expected the halving of the Kennecott Copper dividend by directors made for considerable fresh unsettlement in the copper shares yesterday. Almost without exception the red metal shares dropped to new low levels for the bear move including American Smelters, Anaconda and Granby Consolidated along with Kennecott. The present $1 dividend rate on Kennecott compares with $3.50 paid in 1929 following the disbursement of a 100 per cent stock dividend. Payments were made on a $5 annual basis in the first half of 1930, with the rate being reduced to a $3 annual rate by a cut in the July payment to 75 cents a share and to a $2 basis at the time of the October payment last year.

Some observers are of the opinion that one of the consequences of the new stock exchange questionnaire sent out last week has been to promote a considerable volume of day-to-day short selling. That is, traders, rather than have their transactions recorded in the daily report demand of its members by the institution, are now moved to complete their transactions before the closing, thus obviating the necessity of going into the loan market to borrow stock for delivery against short commitments.

By unanimous action of the members of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association all new savings and time deposits accepted on and after June 1, 1931 are to bear interest at not exceeding 3% per annum.

Believing sound banking practice requires the extension of such action at this time, on and after July 1, 1931 interest on all savings and time deposits with this bank will be paid at a rate not to exceed 3% per annum.

MARKET SINKS LOWER AFTER RALLYING

Earlier Advances Erased And Many Show Fresh Losses as Tide Swings

NEW YORK, June 2 — (AP.) — The stock market wobbled on an uneven keel today, lacking the strength to follow up an early rally.

After an opening sag into new low ground, pivotal stocks met sufficient support to encourage short covering and a rally of 1 to 4 points followed. Trading which had been very active during the first hour or so, grew increasingly dull on the recovery and by afternoon the gains of the morning had been more than lost, with a few stocks weak and the undertone heavy. Necessitous liquidation, however, appeared to have dried up for the time being and the reaction from the earlier highs was slow.

United States Steel yielded a point in the first few minutes and then rebounded 1¼ net. This advance was more than surrendered in the subsequent selling.

Wall street was inclined to attribute part of the recent weakness to an undermining of the technical position through covering prompted by the stock exchange's questionnaire on the short position issued a week ago. Substantial liquidation of long accounts has enabled bears to withdraw as they saw fit without seriously disturbing price levels.

Oil shares were quiet despite the reduction in mid-continental crude prices and an unofficial estimate of another gain in production for the past week. Steel issues, after the early upturn, seemed worried by prospects of a drop in the operating ratio, which threatens to go under 40 per cent.

Although the automobile industry has shown some recession from the May peak, it has held up rather better than expected. Output of one of General Motors low-priced cars showed a good gain over April and nearly reached the total for May, 1930.

The liquidation of security loans continues at a rate satisfactory to banking interests, which have been anxious to see this form of borrowing reduced to a more conservative basis. The week ended May 27 was $53,000,000, while the shrinkage over the past year has been nearly a billion and a half dollars. "All other" loans, which covers commercial accommodations, fell off $39,000,000, contrasting with a recent upward tendency.

Money markets were undisturbed by the June 1 settlements, which included not only the usual large requirements for dividends and interest, but also payment on an $80,000,000 Treasury bill issue. Call loans renewed at 1½ per cent.

Jennifer Loves Berry, But Wants to Hate Him

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

CHAPTER XXII.

Standing in the multiplying embrassure of her mirrors, Jenny's hand, emerald-incrusted, flew to her throat. What had happened? Rarick knew something! He always did when he looked like that. Dry teeth bare. Terror flew at her. Terror and a sudden loathing for the whole tottering structure of her affair with Ramon.

As a keeper of a gigolo she had risked everything. Why mince matters? Keeper of a gigolo! And at risk of security, prestige, eminence. The neuralgic pain that was lurking in her side seemed to leap into her throat—into her spirit. What had she pulled down about her? What terrible crash was this impending?

Out of her recklessness, out of her failure to rest content with the security of her eminence, was she about to reap still more failure?

ASKS EXPLANATION

"Rarick," she cried out to him, ready, as it were, to fight for her life, "don't be a fool!"

How terrifyingly like a skull he was.

Jennifer? Thank God, then it wasn't Jenny! Jennifer, of course. Some nonsense of Jennifer's. This wretched nervousness of hers!

"Call her."

"What has happened Rarick?"

"Call her."

"The child is probably in her bath. Is it as imperative as all that?"

"Call her."

"Tell Miss Jennifer," she said in French to the maid in the Breton cap, "to come here at once. Her father wishes her."

"I wouldn't start rowing with Jennifer this time of the evening, Rarick. What's wrong? Won't it keep until—"

The maid returned.

"Miss Jennifer is dressing and is already late for an appointment. She will come to Mr. Rarick in the library tomorrow morning."

Rarick strode past the words, across the hall, and, without preamble of knocking, into his daughter's suite.

"Rarick," cried Jenny, and strode after, "don't be a fool!"

Jennifer, evidently just risen from bed, was sitting on the edge of it, in a web of a nightgown that fell off her shoulder to the elbow, and pulling on a bit of infinitesimal stocking.

"Why, father," she cried and jerked a bit of the web across her, "you mustn't come in here!"

He hated a display of undress even in the formal attire of the women of his family. This Aphrodite rising from the foam of lace and chiffon offended him less than the bare backs they wore tapering into the waistline of evening gowns.

"Put on some clothes," he said. From the layer of tousled bed clothing of more pink and more lace, his daughter regarded him throw a scowl at a jungle of hair that had fallen forward over her eyes.

"I think this is pretty thick, father," she cried.

Her mother picked up a white, tufted swan's down robe, and tossed it to her.

"Put this on, Jennifer," she said in the cold, measured tones of her disapproval of Rarick.

What a bore—what a bore the man was! Joyless. Still a hardware clerk at heart. Little man, you. No wonder the flame that burned in Ramon was warming to her rigid heart. Thank God for Ramon! What was that paper. . . .

Thrusting the crumpled sheet under his daughter's eyes and slapping it with the back of his hand, Rarick lost no time.

"Explain that."

DANGEROUS DILEMMA

The letter was from Tom Edgerton:

. . . unless, Mr. Rarick, this situation is to result in tragedy for all concerned, I beg you to call instant halt to matters between your daughter and my son-in-law. To add to an already outrageous situation, Leslie is with child. I regret the imperative need to bring before you what I am sure must be your first knowledge of this dangerous dilemma for all concerned. Unless you force it to an immediate solution. . . .

A low cry escaped Jennifer. Pain. Rage. Surprise.

"Damn him! Damn!" she cried and began to sob instantly and wildly into her bare palm, which she clapped against her mouth. "Damn! Damn!"

"It seems to me," cried Jenny, frightened, "that Tom Edgerton had better mind his own eggs in his own basket."

"I want to know," shouted Rarick, seeming to gnaw on his words with his long dry-looking teeth, and standing directly up before his daughter as she struggled into the sleeve of her robe, "what there is between you and Berry Rhodes?"

"And what if I don't choose to tell you?" she cried, already breathless, as if the interview were of long duration instead of only just having begun.

"Don't rag her, Rarick."

"Shut up!" he said. How his jaw slid around in that circular, grinding movement! Thank God it was Jennifer and not herself on the rack before him. She could defend Jennifer—.

"Either you tell me the exact situation," went on her father, brushing the crest off of a wave of small, incredibly sheer pillows, as he began to waggle a finger at her, "or I'll have the Rhodes dog here himself, or go where I can find him."

"If you do," cried Jennifer, wrapping herself in her arms, as if to withdraw from possibility of contact with the threat, "I'll kill myself."

ANGER DISSOLVED

"Jennifer, for God's sake, you must learn to talk quietly to your father."

"How can I talk quietly to him? How can I talk at all to him? How can I talk to anybody? Get out! For God's sake, get out! Give me that letter!" She snatched it from her mother's hands and began to twist it the shape of her own twisted lips. "Leave me alone! Get out!"

Her father caught her by the wrist, jerking her toward him until her teeth gave a click.

"What is this man to you?"

She began to sob, her face naked and dark as she struggled for her hands.

"As if you would understand if I told you."

"What is he to you?"

Suddenly, as if the realization of her trap came flooding over her, she let her wrists relax in her father's grip and dropped her head forward until her brow was almost against his hands, before her incredible words came.

"I love him, papa," she said. "Help me, papa. I don't want to love him. I want to hate him and I can't. Help me, papa. Please, please, papa."

His heart was in his mouth. His knees trembled. The "papa" had almost unnerved him. The silly revealing child's word. Papa. A primitive phonetic word that must have had its etymology along the toothless gums of babes. He was too racked to make a sound. Papa, help Jennifer . . .

"Oh, my darling!" cried Jenny, stung to the quick, pouring tears. "And mother never knew. Mother never knew. My baby, what has come over you? This isn't like you!"

"I know it isn't, mother. It's not me. That's just it. I'm not myself. I want to hate him. I want to keep hating him. And I love him, mother. Isn't that terrible?"

"My dear! My sweet! It is just an infatuation. He isn't worth your little finger. My dear—my sweet!"

This bare-backed woman, with the little notches up her spine that were repulsive to him, and the narrow head with the pink hair brushed up straight to accentuate it, was wresting the situation from him. She was superb as she drew the head of Jennifer to her narrow breast.

Superb with being her mother, while he stood dumb before the emergency of his daughter, even though, at her words, "Help me, papa," his anger had dissolved into the flood-stream of his heart. Still he remained there, dumb, while Jenny, whose pain flowed in the relief of tears, was wresting from him what had been perilously near being a moment of contact with his girl.

"Why, darling, mother never realized——"

"That would be helpful, Rarick," said Jenny, regarding him above the head of her daughter with cool, slitted eyes. "One of your typically diplomatic moves."

"I'll break every bone in his body."

"Mother, mother, make him understand! There's really been nothing between Berry and me. If he goes to Berry, I swear I'll kill myself —— I tell you I've been the—the aggressor. I am the one ——"

"Shh—h-h, my darling! I understand."

"You see, mother, it hasn't been Berry."

He was out of it now. It was Jennifer and her mother. Jennifer in the cradle of her mother's arms, like a child.

"Yes, yes, mother knows——"

"Down inside him somewhere, Berry's got a sense of honor. I'm the rotter. I haven't let him be. After that night—even. I've kept wangling him. To meet me. To be with me. Every once in a while I think I'm cured, mother. I've been in hell. I'm sick, mother.

"You try and make father see that. I'm like a drug fiend. I love him and I don't want to love him. He's snide, he's swine. I keep telling myself. And now that Leslie's going to have a kid, that makes me twice swine. O God, I—I think I am crazy, mother."

DAILY SHORT STORY

Summer Resort Romance Has Unusual Ending

Heartbreaking

Jack Danford watched her at breakfast.

She was certainly a mighty pretty girl, and he was lonesome.

He sighed. He was unlike the others in this great and cool diningroom of the Hotel Oceania in that the others were guests with leisure, while he had come down there on a legal errand and had to go back north the next day.

He wished he knew just one person there, so that he might get an introduction to this charming girl.

The girl was quite amused, and somewhat interested, for she, too, was lonesome. And she knew that this nice looking chap was watching her with approving eyes.

She had noticed him at dinner the night before but he hadn't seen her then. She wondered how long he was going to stay and she was surprised this morning because he seemed to be quite alone and lonesome. Rather unusual, she thought, for a man to go all alone to a big hotel on a vacation.

And then a large woman with a small child came along and stopped at the girl's table.

"Why, Lola Follansbee—my deah—imagine it!" she said.

"Hello, Mrs. Whitson, and here's little Emmy. How are you, Dearie?"

Dearie murmured that she was all right only Mama would not let her go paddle in the water until after breakfast.

It was too bad that he had to be cooped up all morning in a lawyer's office.

She flashed a smile at him and went out.

Lola was amused. This chap was nice looking, polite, but surely he was a fast worker. She guessed that he had heard her name when Mrs. Whitson greeted her.

Lola went into the big sun parlor and picked up a magazine. She called over one of the little bellhops just as Jack Danford came out of the dining room.

"Who is he?" she asked, slipping the boy a coin.

LEARNS MAN'S NAME

"He is a Mr. John J. Danford from New York," he informed Lola.

Meanwhile Jack Danford had been kept busier than he expected at the law office. The disentangling of some mixed-up legal matters had taken most of the day. He had returned finally, had an afternoon plunge and was walking down the Palmway when he met Lola Follansbee.

"Just walking, Mr. Danford, and dreading to go back and dress for dinner—so much formality all the time becomes monotonous."

"It does, indeed," he answered, wondering how the devil she learned his name.

At any rate, it was an opening. They could now do without a formal introduction and pretend that each believed the other to be an old acquaintance.

They strolled and talked of this and of that until Lola said that it was time to be turning back to the hotel.

"Why, I'd love to—I've never been over there," and Lola wondered how they'd make it, as it was fully 20 miles up the inlet to this favorably known cafe and dance pavilion.

Jack turned from the Palmway to the street beyond and stopped at a place where he secured a car and a driver. And so they were off for Coral Castle.

EXCELLENT DINNER

The driver assured Jack that there were always plenty of cars there waiting to take the patrons home at almost any hour.

So Jack and Lola went in and enjoyed a really excellent dinner. The reason for this was that Jack knew the manager of the place, this manager having been one of the men interested in the legal affairs of the forenoon.

There was some remarkably good wine. It had been on a sea-voyage from France to Cuba and on a shorter sea voyage, all sub rosa, to the Coral Castle.

So Jack Danford and Lola Follansbee ate and drank and danced and got to calling each other "Jack" and "Lola."

Quite frankly enough Jack told about his law business in New York, and Lola, equally as frank, admitted that she was living with a relative in the same city.

They went out to the seaside terrace between dances, only this was misnamed, for it faced a lagoon and the sea was a mile to the east. The same old moon was making a pathway of gold across the still waters of the lagoon. Jack and Lola argued happily for a while, she maintaining that the reflection was like silver and he held to the gold.

Canoeists were idly paddling around. Some were singing, some were laughing, others were just drifting and snuggling.

Jack looked at Lola. She would certainly be nice to snuggle up to for an evening, and a canoe seemed to be the way to this end. He secured a canoe. They paddled, or he did, up the lagoon to a narrower inlet where palms looked like black lace against the moonlight.

TALK OF LIFE

They talked of people and cities, and finally of fate and the pranks of the Greeks' malicious little imp, Eros, supposed to represent love.

It was remarkable how they happened to come so many miles from their homes in the same big city, and meet here!

"Some sort of a fate or influence or something works to bring people together," Lola said, dreamily.

"Encore," Lola whispered.

It was a long and successful encore.

"We're going to be very, very happy," Jack told her.

"Yes, oh yes, Jack."

"—and always," Lola agreed.

They said a great deal, they petted a great deal, they stopped to sing a few little love songs.

The dinner, which had been excellent, the wine, which had been gently stimulative, and the environment of fronded palms and lagoon waters and moonlight certainly all helped to make it a memorable evening.

But it had to end.

It must have been three in the morning when they were driven back to the hotel. Jack paused in the shadow of some shrubs in the hotel yard for a good night kiss.

"I'll see you in the morning, darling!" Jack said.

"Yes, sweet boy!"

They met on the beach at eleven the next day, and swam out to the float together, too many people around, they went back and up the beach to a sea wall and sat down to talk things over.

MEET ON TRAIN

Jack Danford was worried. He hated to be a cad, but he had been carried away by the girl's beauty and the environment. It was heartbreaking, but he would have to explain that it was just a passing moment.

Lola was also worried. She had been silly to make such fervent love—it would break his heart, but she would have to explain.

"If—I mean—I think, Mr. Danford, that we ought to know each other better, our—er—homes, and our people, our background—I don't want to break your heart—but—"

Jack looked at her.

"I understand—you are right—I will be sensible about it—we were so romantic last night, but—but still, we are strangers, aren't we?"

Both were greatly relieved.

Jack didn't tell her that he was checking out, but he did, and he went north as far as Charleston, where he had to stop off to pick up his wife who had come down to visit her mother!

When they boarded the Pullman to go home, and went into the dining car, they were seated at a table, right opposite Lola Follansbee and her husband! Friend Husband had come down by air to meet his wife and bring her home.

They got to chattering together, self-introductions were made and the Follansbees and the Danfords are quite good friends now.

Restitution Sought

The Suggestion That the City May Recover Money Lost By Supplies Department Is Welcome.

Notwithstanding that there is a feeling that Bertram L. Succop, former director of supplies, was merely the tool of a vicious political system, the suggestion that he be surcharged with $69,725.55 which the city lost through contracts that he warded to high bidders is to be welcomed.

It offers a definite, tangible plan of action.

The suggestion is made in a letter to Controller Kerr from the Citizens Committee and the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, and we have assurance in the caution with which they have proceeded in the investigation of the Supplies Department mess that this latest step was not taken hastily or without proper consideration.

Mr. Succop may or may not be the "goat" behind which others even more responsible for the mess are taking refuge.

He was the official nominally to blame and the official to whom a claim for restitution naturally should be presented.

If he was merely a tool, and responsibility rests elsewhere, it is for him to say so.

The Sage Coal Survey

Nothing Startlingly New Has Been Discovered, but the Findings Deserve Attention.

The Russell Sage Foundation has issued a report of an investigation of conditions in the bituminous coal industry in the "central competitive field" of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

The soft coal industry in these states has been exhaustively investigated again and again, notably by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee in 1928. It was hardly to be expected, therefore, that the Sage investigators would develop anything startlingly new, and they haven't.

Their findings will probably be regarded in some quarters as commonplace and obvious. Nevertheless they deserve respectful attention.

There is scant likelihood that a magic elixir will be found which will instantly cure the ills of the industry. It is more likely that health will be restored by taking the advice, unpalatable though it may be, that practically all the impartial investigators offer.

The Sage Foundation finds, of course, that depression in the industry is due to the fact that the output of coal exceeds the demand. The operators are not making money, a fact to be kept in mind by the miners in presenting wage demands.

The foundation also finds—and this is especially worthy of the operators' attention—that the economic problems which beset the industry will be less difficult of solution if miners and operators are more effectively organized and the principle of collective bargaining is accepted.

A Gift From the Legion

Emporium Post Shows That the Spirit of Unselfish Service Still Prevails.

A Memorial Day speaker condemned the American Legion as selfish, because it sought immediate payment of the adjusted compensation certificates granted World War veterans.

There has been a good deal of such unfair criticism lately.

It would be easy to cite numerous examples of unselfish service by the legion, to refute those who say it is selfish. We will submit the case that happens to lie nearest to hand:

On June 10 Olkosky-Jessop Post No. 194, of Emporium, Cameron County, will present to the state a swimming pool 60 feet wide by 110 feet long which has been built on State Forest land at Sizerville.

Construction of the pool cost the legion post $4,171.76, and it not only spent the last dollar in its treasury, but even borrowed money to complete the job.

The streams in that section are swift and shallow. The people desired to swim and there was no satisfactory place; so the legion, actuated by the spirit of unselfish service, provided one.

Apple Preferences

The Dealers Would Oblige by Letting Us Try Varieties Not Found in the Local Market.

The 1931 Yearbook of the Department of Agriculture, just off the press, offers some interesting information about the preferences of the cities in respect to varieties of apples.

The people of Eastern cities are fond of the McIntosh variety. Sixteen per cent of all the apples eaten in Boston are McIntosh, and 11 per cent of those consumed in New York.

On the other hand, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia used so few McIntosh that they were not reported separately in the survey.

The Rhode Island Greening is another variety that is popular in the East, but neglected here. It accounts for nine per cent of the apples eaten in New York, but for only one-fifth of one per cent of the Pittsburgh supply.

Don't Cut Your Head Off! -:- By Nelson Harding

The goose that lays the golden eggs
Seems to be ailing now,
Its appetite is not so good,
An ache afflicts its brow.

The ax cure may remove a head
To terminate a pain,
But silly geese that lose their heads
Cannot lay eggs again.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Mixed Grill

"And so they were married, and lived happily ever after," has been changed, in a few years, to "And so they were married—and she went to live in Reno."

No man will ever understand women; because, the moment he discovers the "answer" to one of them, he loses all interest in the game and is off pursuing another "experiment."

The old-fashioned wife had to compete with only the ladies-of-easy-virtue. But, now that nice women have stolen a leaf from "the other woman's book," every woman is a possible rival.

A Broadway beauty admits that she's "just 39." Of course! Every woman is "just 39" until she's 50—and then she starts being "49."

A camel can go 300 miles without a drink. But The-Man-We-Know-Best says, "Why not? A camel never has to pass a speak-easy."

We are beginning to discover that the fascinating highway, called "Easy Street," has a lot of rocky detours, all leading to the Poorhouse.

When a woman dresses in a way to make a rainbow look like a mourning band, you may know that her husband has chosen her clothes.

The perfect week-end guest is the one who flatters the cook, brings his own aspirin, departs for the city on Sunday night, and would sooner think of stealing the spoons than of using the guest-towels.

Why does the modern girl always think that she must be scintillating or snappy or spicy or startling—just as though every man were a "sleeping beauty," who must be waked up by an alarm clock?

Isn't It So?

The channel that great minds run in is never overcrowded.

There is little unemployment in that large class that is working for the wages of sin.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 2.—Theatrical audiences are frequently forced to endure the agony of an actor going up in his lines or a performance suddenly going haywire. I have been at the ringside of several of these spectacles. Usually they happen in the tense travail of a first night.

The most embarrassing was about nine years ago. A great dramatic star was opening in a new play. Rarely has such a distinguished first night audience gathered. There was riotous applause at the star's entrance and the expectant pause for her first line.

It was a murmurous mumble. Listeners naturally thought it a touch of stage fright. But she continued jerkily, finally lurched forward and let go a full-blown hiccup. With a sudden shock the audience realized she was dead drunk. And the curtain rolled down.

Then there was that grand gesture of Robert Warwick in averting a first-night panic. An acrid, burning odor was making the house restless. A coil of smoke puffed out of the ceiling. A scream and the audience arose in pandemonium. Warwick stepped to the lights with a graceful speech and saved the day.

At the old Knickerbocker a celebrated actor at his premiere was suddenly stricken with a dumbness. After several promptings from the wings, he walked toward his audience and, in a white-faced calm, said: "I regret, but I have completely forgot my lines." He suffered a nervous breakdown next day.

Recently an East Indian magician put on an illusion show in one of the intimate theaters. The curtain, ringing up an hour late, stuck half way in its ascension. A series of other tragic blunders ensued, exposing all tricks. But the audience was a collective "good sport" and stayed to the finish.

Often awkward accidents have been capitalized. Bert Wheeler was clowning in a dark cave. There were terrific uncalled for noises back stage. "It's the mice!" chirped Wheeler, and the incident was kept in the show. W. C. Fields similarly capitalized a bit of falling scenery in a revue skit.

Twenty-five years ago Harry Von Tilzer was one of the most successful composers, sponsoring such sentimentalities as "Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage," etc. His vogue declined, but today his income is greater than ever in royalties from old songs in radio revivals.

Speaking of theatrical interruptions, at the Apollo one evening a lady down front suddenly blurted out loud: "Henry, we forgot to send the car back for mother and now she'll miss her train!" And to add to the hilarity the audience burst into furious applause as they rushed up the aisle, thus stopping the show.

They were talking about the good old days, the decline of jazz and the return to simplicity. Finally Frazier Hunt stood up, yawned and explained he was off to look for a factory and begin manufacturing side bar buggies and flint-lock muskets.

Eva Tanguay shivering in her epileptic-like seizures and singing her old favorite "I Don't Care" in a modest Brooklyn auberge is a wrench for many who worshiped at her vaudeville shrine in the long ago. Miss Tanguay was drawing a salary of $2,500 a week in days when $100 was a big weekly wage. For some time her eyesight has been dimming and years have plucked the inevitable toll—yet there are moments when she sparks like the temperamental Eva of old. She was the first of the "It" girls—exuding an electrical quality that packed vaudeville houses from coast to coast in the days when vaudeville was vaudeville.

I am hoping for a comeback of vaudeville. Some time ago it had a spurt, but is cloying again with repetitious acts and celebrity "name turns." It needs chiefly to be just vaudeville, instead of trying to go dramatic, musical revueish and grand opera. We go to vaudeville for Blossom Seely and Benny Fields. To the "Met" for Jeritza.

* * *

To the true vaudevillian a fast Indian club-swinging act or a brace of trick bicyclists are welcome. And at the moment I'd trade my favorite play-pretty—the grand desk lighter Pierre Cartier gave me—to hear Charlie Case pan his father or Frank Tinney heckle the orchestra leader—he invented that, by the way. Maybe I'm wrong about vaudeville. Anyway, do I know what I'm doing?

ENIGMAS OF PHYSICS

By Archibald Henderson

A singular situation is arising in modern physics, largely as the result of the quantum mechanics and the newer developments of Heisenberg, which are doing more than affecting the fundamentals of physics. Similar effects are being produced by the anomalous situation in which the ether finds itself today. Scientists are deeply perturbed because they are forced, at different times, to use theories which are mutually incompatible. One moment, known results are correctly derived by the old Newtonian mechanics; another moment, the Einsteinian mechanics must be resorted to, in order to arrive at known results, such as the minute shift in the spectral lines.

Consider the parlous state in which the ether finds itself today. Is the ether stationary or does moving matter drag the ether along with it? When a bar of metal is moving with enormous velocity in the direction of its length, does it actually suffer the contraction posited by Fitzgerald? Or is this only an "Einstein effect" produced by the relativity of space and time? Is this contraction, whether actual or fictitious, precisely the amount necessary to account for the inexplicable result of the famous Michelson-Morley experiment? How does it come about that Nature seems to conspire against the scientists to defeat their utmost efforts to determine absolute velocity?

The effect of these various antinomies upon physics has been immense and exceedingly perturbing. There is great need for a modern master of quantum mechanics, of the caliber of Clerk Maxwell, to place the law of casuality upon a sound basis once more.

Even more far-reaching have been the effects of the new physical theories and discoveries upon philosophy. The very laws of philosophy, of thought, have been impugned. Here and there is heard the suggestion that the new physics is compelling a reorganization of the old "laws" of thought. The new physics, with all its complexities and contradictions, requires the development of a more refined logical technic.

Prof. Oliver L. Reiser, of the University of Pittsburgh, has recently put these matters in a very clear light in the current issue of Psyche. He is engaged in analyzing some of the new suggestions made by scholars and thinkers like the late Dr. Francis Dercum, L. E. J. Brouwer, B. B. Bogoslovsky and P. W. Bridgman. Prof. Reiser shows that doubt of a sort has been thrown on such axioms of logical thinking as the following: Whatever is, is; a thing is what it is; a thing is where it is; the same thing cannot be in two different places at the same time; and finally, in order that a thing can get from one place to another, it must move through the intervening space, and it must take some time to do this.

A question has been set opposite each one of these "axioms" of thought by the new physical theories. These theories are perhaps not, as yet, exact enough, refined enough. How can an electron be at once corpuscular and undulating? How can an electron be a tiny point-charge and yet have an electro-magnetic "field" extending throughout all space? Are the physical theories wrong? Or must we overhaul the very foundations of logic? No one knows the answer.

Text For Today Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it: except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain.—Psalms, cxxvii:1.

The Right Sort—Both Old Women

Honor Them; They Refuse to Give In.

TIME CAN'T CONQUER HER

This lady's fiftieth birthday is far in the past. But she doesn't stay home and rock, knit, sew, gossip or moan about the changing times.

The lady in the riding habit, who is past 80 years of age, has just ridden her horse through a difficult steeplechase, over high jumps, coming in well in front. She is Mrs. S. Aitkin.

The average woman of her age would say, "I think it is terrible the way young girls carry on in our days." This lady is too busy for that; she goes out and carries on, on her own account, riding in a steeplechase against young women, and riding well.

These two pictures are printed to remind women past FIFTY, past SIXTY and past SEVENTY, that time cannot conquer, if you refuse to be conquered.

Trees die at the top and so do human beings. Keep the top, which is the head, young; keep the will strong. Then Father Time will bow politely, saying, "You are too much for ME," and you will enjoy life.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

It is well to show that you are pleased and to be courteous when you are introduced to a person.

It is not so good to be overenthusiastic or servile in effect.

To be unduly pleased when presented to an individual is a sort of intimation that you feel something is to be gained by the contact.

Those who have money naturally think you want pecuniary aid or something like that and the impression that you have created for yourself is not to your advantage.

Every person with a spark of genuine human nature is more or less gratified to meet another who presents a possibility of common interests.

But a too effusive manner and a vise-like hand grip is going to meet a suddenly cold and hardened exterior by way of recognition.

Those who have no personal gain in mind usually acknowledge an introduction with decorum.

They don't give strangers the idea that they are accepted on an equal basis until they know more about them.

If you believe that an undue display of affability, good spirits and desire for that particular championship are winning, you have an erroneous idea and your actions savor of artificiality.
